'Just About Perfect'—Astronaut to JFK

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard personally reported to President Kennedy by radio telephone today that "everything worked just about perfectly" on his flight into space.

"It was a very rewarding experience for me and the people who made it possible," Shepard told the president.

Kennedy spoke from his White House office to Shepard in the admiral's quarters aboard the navy aircraft carrier Lake Champlain.

The conversation came shortly after Shepard was plucked out of the Atlantic and flown aboard the Champlain by helicopter.

Here is the text of their conversation:

Kennedy—Hello Commander.

Shepard—Yes sir.

Kennedy—I want to congratulate you very much.

Shepard—Thank you very much, Mr. President.

Kennedy—We watched you on TV, of course, and we are awfully pleased and proud of what you did.

Shepard—Well, thank you, sir. As you know by now everything worked just about perfectly and it was a very rewarding experience for me and the people who made it possible.

Kennedy—We are looking forward to seeing you up here, Commander.

Shepard—Thank you very much. I am looking forward to it, I assure you.

Kennedy—The members of the National Security Council are meeting on another matter this morning and they all want me to give you their congratulations.

Shepard—Thank you very much, sir, and I'm looking forward to meeting you in the near future.

Kennedy—Thank you, Commander and good luck.

The White House announced that Shepard probably will be brought here Monday to confer with Kennedy and to receive his congratulations in person.

There was a move afoot in Congress to award Shepard the Medal of Honor—the nation's most coveted decoration. In a statement issued immediately after the flight, Kennedy said all Americans rejoice in the mission carried out by the heroic astronaut.

'Two Years Behind Us'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Noted Soviet ballistic expert Georgi Pokrovsky said today the United States man-in-space program still lags behind the Soviet Union by roughly two years.

"Today's flight is in some measure like those of June, 1959, in the Soviet Union when we launched and recovered animals from rockets. The result and the scientific interest is about the same," he said.

"Today's experience certainly augments the possibility of the American's launching of a man around the earth," he added.

ONE HAPPY WIFE

"Wonderful, wonderful, wonderful" was the reaction of Mrs. Alan Shepard as she appeared on front porch of her Virginia Beach home to greet friends and newsmen after successful flight of her husband. (AP Wirephoto.)

Peace Parley Opens in Laos

BAN HIN HEUP, Laos (UPI)—Representatives of the pro-Western royal government of Laos and the Communist-backed Pathet Lao rebels met on a dusty road near here today to begin peace talks.

A six-member government team headed by army inspector General Sing Battanasamay flew in from Vientiane aboard an American-piloted helicopter.

Premier Prince Boun Oum sent them to meet with representative Souvanna Phouma and the Communist Pathet Lao rebels.

Already on the scene making preliminary preparations was Col. Siho Lamphouthakoul, director of national co-ordination. He was smiling and pleased at the results of his preliminary contacts with the rebels but not overly optimistic at what would come out of the conference.

Up to today, all exchanges between the rebels and the government representatives had been by messenger, between the lines.

OL' VIC SAYS:

Well, th' two sides in Laos hev met. But I doubt if th' acquaintanceship will ripen into somethin' more than targets.

An astronaut likes t' be way out—but not in his calculations.

Whoever wrecked th' high school has proved somethin'—but you'd think he'd rather not hev let it be known.

Astronaut Controls Own Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—America's first astronaut leaped 115 miles into space today aboard a spacecraft named "Freedom 7" and won for America and mankind a historic breakthrough: the first flight in space controlled by the pilot himself.

The astronaut, 37-year-old Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., was plucked from the sea 21 minutes later and 302 miles down the Atlantic missile range. He was not only alive but in all respects "okay" and thousands were witnesses to the fact of his feat.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) happily announced: "The space flight is a success." President Kennedy personally congratulated Shepard by radio telephone shortly after successful completion of the flight.

The chief executive promised to share with the world the scientific material obtained during the flight, which he called a "historic milestone" in America's space effort.

As Shepard sailed high over the Atlantic and surveyed the U.S. coastline as far north as Cape Hatteras, N.C., he radioed back from the capsule:

"What a beautiful view!"

Another spaceman, Russia's Yuri Gagarin, had gone higher and farther and faster. But Alan Shepard was the first man in history to exercise control over the motions of a craft he was riding in space.

Said NASA while the 37-year-old navy commander was still in space: "He is working as a test pilot."

Shepard and Freedom 7 rose from Launch Pad 5 at 10:34 a.m. EDT (7:34 a.m. Victoria time) on the nose of a 66,000-pound Redstone missile. The launch, postponed since Tuesday, came two hours and 34 minutes after the planned shot time of 8 a.m. EDT.

Seven "holds" (delays), many for weather and one to change an electrical part in the Redstone, had kept the rocket earthbound while Shepard lay strapped to his couch aboard the little Mercury capsule.

He had been sealed into the cabin at 7:07 a.m. EDT. He lay there three hours and 27 minutes before the tension-breaking announcement: "Liftoff," came from the Mercury control centre.

But once started, the flight went perfectly. Second by second NASA reported what was going on aboard the Freedom 7. Almost before those waiting on the cape could catch their breath after watching the Redstone's beautiful flight until it was out of sight, the word came at 10:58 a.m. EDT that a helicopter had plucked Shepard out of the capsule and was bearing him and his space coach to the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain.

Then came the word that Shepard was on the deck "under his own power and doing very well."

Yuri Gagarin on April 12 flew around the world in a five-ton spacecraft which was operated entirely by automatic or ground controls.

Shepard during much of his ride put the capsule through various manoeuvres.

He changed the way it pointed in space.

He controlled its pitch, roll, and yaw.

He reported what was happening to him when gravity forces multiplied his weight some six times during powered flight and 11 times when he came back down through the atmosphere.

But throughout the physical stresses and the mental strain of watching or operating more than 100 instruments, Shepard reported back constantly by voice radio that everything was "okay."

After extending a periscope he reported exultantly: "What a beautiful view."

Returned to Ship to Get Helmet

From 115 miles up, he could scan the azure Atlantic and Caribbean with their green islands, and the southern coast of the United States as far as Cape Hatteras, N.C.

And when he returned home to earth again, aboard the carrier Lake Champlain, he jauntily re-entered space ship Freedom 7 to retrieve the pressure helmet he had doffed during the helicopter recovery.

Electronic sensors fixed to Shepard's skin kept medical monitors in the ground control centre here constantly informed about his breathing, heartbeat, and temperature.

Their one-word report of his condition: "Excellent."

Three hundred seconds after liftoff he reported the flight was going "very smooth."

Seven minutes after launch he had put the cabin into position to re-enter the atmosphere. He said it went "okay."

Twelve minutes and 30 seconds after the launch the capsule's parachute had opened and it was coming down.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced at 11:01 a.m. EDT: "A project Mercury spacecraft carrying astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., on the nation's first manned space flight landed in the Atlantic Ocean about 302 statute miles from here at 9:49 a.m. EST."

"The craft reached an altitude of 110,000 feet."

Tribute From Mac

LONDON—Prime Minister Macmillan today sent a cable of congratulation to President Kennedy on the success of the U.S. space flight.

The prime minister said Mr. Bastedo, in his reasons for reservation attached to the bill sent to Ottawa, cited his opinion that the bill was ultra vires of the provincial legislature and "not in the national interest."

Justice Minister Fulton has expressed his opinion that the legislation is within the Saskatchewan legislature's competence, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

considering a formal instruction to all lieutenant-governors to avoid such action.

The bill involved called for a renegotiation of mineral contracts in Saskatchewan. Mr. Bastedo reserved assent "for the significance of the pleasure of the governor-general."

Mr. Diefenbaker said a federal order-in-council has been passed under which the governor-general, on advice of the cabinet, has declared assent.

He told the Commons that Mr. Bastedo had reserved assent on the bill without instructions from or consultation with Ottawa, and that the cabinet is

DOCTORS' REPORT

'Physically Fit ... Fine Spirits'

ABOARD USS LAKE CHAMPLAIN (AP)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard was reported in "excellent physical condition" and in "fine spirits" less than an hour after he returned to earth from his space flight.

The report was made by doctors who examined him on this ship.

Army Capt. Jerry Strong, one of the doctors, reported: "There is nothing we can determine that is in any way abnormal after the flight."

Shepard looked in great shape as he came aboard after his ride into the unknown.

He shook hands with doctors and hundreds of sailors cheered.

Then he walked toward the admiral's quarters to get a physical examination and begin to tell the story of his flight. Only the doctors were permitted to speak to the astronaut.

FORGOT HELMET

Shepard stepped out of the helicopter at about 11:01 a.m. went briefly to the capsule and picked up his space helmet which he had left behind.

He said "thank you" to Lieut. George Cox, the co-pilot, who also snagged the space chimp, Ham, from the ocean. It was a real spit and polish welcome usually reserved for high brass admirals.

Seamen shouted and whooped when they first saw the orange parachute appear northeast of the carrier.

He will be flown to Washington, probably Sunday or Monday, for a hero's welcome at the White House from President Kennedy.

He will remain in Washington about 36 hours and then will return to Cape Canaveral for further tests.

Tight Phrases Relate the Story

Reports from the Mercury control centre—and from the astronaut—told in tight phrases the story of the epochal flight:
"Ignition."
"Lift-off."
"There it goes."
"Looking good."
"Trajectory okay."
"Pilot in good voice communication."
"Four G's."
"Now out of sight."
"Astronaut okay."
"Taking over manual control of all altitudes . . . control okay."
From Shepard: "What a beautiful view."
"Voice communications still good."

Preliminary data indicates the pilot performed satisfactorily during the flight."
NASA said the flight time, not counting parachute descent, was 15 minutes.
"Retro rocket package jettisoned."
"Astronaut is working like a test pilot, reporting facts and procedures."
"Going into re-entry attitude."
"Parachute out."
"Spotted by recovery forces."
"The space craft has landed in the sea."
"Astronaut is aboard helicopter."
"Spacecraft is on (carrier) deck."
"Astronaut is on deck and climbing back in capsule to get his helmet."
"Astronaut Alan B. Shepard is under his own power and doing very well."

WIRED FOR SOUND just before today's take-off into space, astronaut Alan Shepard is shown with sensors attached to his body. (AP Wirephoto.)

Storm Front Moving Toward Cape

The flight took place only after a delay of more than three hours beyond the planned launching time, amid building tension on the Cape and among the hundreds of spectators lining the beaches below.
It came only an hour or so ahead of what probably would have been a cutoff for weather reasons. A storm front was scheduled to move into the Cape area around noon, EDT. The long countdown for the rocket firing began at 1 a.m., EDT, and proceeded without a hitch through the hours of darkness.

Trouble started 15 minutes from firing time.
Clouds swung in over the Cape area and for the first time since the countdown began the weather appeared to be a problem.

Repeat TV Coverage On Ch. 6, 2 at 11.30

A re-run of TV coverage of this morning's flight into space will be carried by Channels 6 and 2 tonight at 11.30. It will last 30 minutes.
It is expected that all American networks will be carrying re-runs of the historic flight during the evening, as well as though they were unable to advise the Times of exact times.

Hockey Coach Dies

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—Max Kaminsky, former American Hockey League coach who took this city's hockey club to Canada's top junior honors in 1960, died today. He was 49.

'LET HIM GO OR ABORT THE MISSION'

Eight Seconds to Make Decision

SIX OTHER ASTRONAUTS WERE BUSY

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Roles of the other six astronauts in today's space flight: John Glenn was the backup man for "prime astronaut" Alan Shepard, who rode the spacecraft.
Malcolm Carpenter and Walter Schirra flew F-106 jet chase planes which followed the missile flight.
Leroy Cooper and Donald Slayton worked in the Project Mercury control centre communicator.
Virgil Grissom also was at the control centre, with an earphone he could plug into any channel, to be an adviser at any stage of the countdown.

B.C. Packers Pioneer Dies in California

VANCOUVER (CP)—Henry Doyle, a British Columbia pioneer and co-founder of the B.C. Packers' Association, has died at his Sherman Oaks, Calif., home, it was learned here Thursday.
Mr. Doyle, who lived in the province for 57 years, came here when 16 in 1890.
Within five years he had established branches at Victoria, Seattle and Astoria.
In 1902 with assistance from Emmil Jervis of Toronto he formed the B.C. Packers' Association which operated 40 canneries.
In 1912 he served as vice-president of Northern B.C. Fisheries Limited.
He retired in 1919.

whether to let Shepard go into space or to abort the mission rocket. He had to make up by firing the pilot-escape his mind in the eight seconds after ignition of the Redstone's alcohol and liquid oxygen fuel before the 33-ton rocket would lift from the pad.
At ignition, Debus was poised over two buttons under a plastic cover. He flipped the cover up, placed his hands close to the buttons and stared intently through a window at the flame spurting from the rocket's exhaust.
From long experience, Debus could tell by studying the color and shape and intensity of the flame whether the burning was going right.
If it were not, one button would "arm" the abort system—a rocket atop a 16-foot tower rising from the mercury capsule. The other would ignite the escape rocket and jerk the capsule and pilot away from the rocket.

"The Canadian people have followed with the deepest interest the space flight which has just been successfully completed," the prime minister said. "I send you our warmest congratulations on this great achievement which is a further stage in the exploration of outer space for peaceful purposes."

HIS FAMILY PRAYED

'Space Town—U.S.A.'

DERRY, N.H. (UPI)—The family of Alan B. Shepard Jr. waited and prayed today for the success of the nation's first attempt to launch a man in space.

Shepard's 10-year-old nephew David of North Attleboro, Mass., arrived with his mother, Mrs. Gordon Sherman, Shepard's sister, Thursday night. Today David popped out of the

'Here I Go, Dee'

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—"Here I go, Dee."

The speaker: Astronaut Alan B. Shepard.

The farewell was addressed to his nurse, black-haired Dolores (Dee) O'Hara, as Shepard left the hangar en route to his space capsule.

Miss O'Hara is part of the medical team working with the Mercury astronauts. Her assignment during the long hours of "isolation" before flight had been to supervise the comfort of the astronaut and his alternate.

She also was responsible for the relaxing decor in the ready room where Shepard spent the last few hours before suiting up for his space venture.

Miss O'Hara, an Oregonian, does interior decorating as a hobby. Her work on the astronaut's quarters would do credit to a professional.

Behan in Hospital

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Irish playwright Brendan Behan "rested up" in a hospital today following a four-day tour of taverns in the San Francisco Bay area.

house to get the morning paper and confided to newsmen that Shepard, his mother's brother, had telephoned home.

The call came Thursday night and David said his uncle told the family he had just taken a run on the beach for exercise to keep in trim for the historic flight. He said Shepard was "feeling fine."

"After the call we all got down on our knees and prayed," David said. He was wearing a Cub Scout uniform.

WATCH ON TV

Alan Shepard Sr. said the family was "waiting to see the show" on television, as was virtually everyone else in this small industrial town where the astronaut was born.

A new flag on the 15-foot flagpole in front of the Shepard house, a freshly-mowed lawn and a neat pile of raked leaves reflected the pride inside the warm, typically American home.

At the First Congregational Church where the Shepard family worships, Rev. Thomas O. De Wolfe offered prayers for the safety of the astronaut.

BIG BLOWOUT

The entire town prepared for a celebration in honor of Shepard.

The streets were decked with bunting and huge banners advertised "Derry—Space Town U.S.A." Plans for a parade were carefully made.

Pinkerton Academy, where

Shepard went to school, suspended classes for the day to enable the students to watch the proceedings on television. Public schools suspended classes for half a day and business activity appeared nil.

NEVER RUFFLED BY BRUTAL TRAINING

He Thrived on Danger

By United Press International
Astronaut Alan Shepard spent two brutal years training for his terrifying leap into space and then three more days waiting it out.

None of it ruffled him. He is of that rugged and rare group of combat men who thrive on danger and seek it out... as a businessman seeks a profit... as a novelist seeks a plot. The danger jobs of aviation are those of the jet test pilots, and Shepard was a jet test pilot.

He volunteered to be a man in space. Would you?

For a long time Shepard has been ahead on points in the competitive seven-man race to be first to ride the Mercury capsule downrange from Cape Canaveral. His desire was as strong as his ability.

He weighs 160 pounds and is five feet 11 inches tall. His brown hair is crewcut, his eyes blue. Although a man of noted reserve, he has a winning smile and a wide, delighted grin.

THEY ATE HEARTILY

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. awoke from a 2 1/2-hour nap early today to make ready for his dip into space.

America's "prime astronaut" and his backup man, Marine Lt. Col. John Glenn, went to bed about 11:30 p.m. EDT Thursday night, after a quiet evening watching television.

Dr. William K. Douglas of El Paso, Tex., their air force doctor, woke the two men a few minutes after 2 a.m. EDT, and soon they were seated before a breakfast of orange juice, filet mignon, wrapped in bacon, two poached eggs and dry toast and jelly.

He seemed surprised when asked if he slept well the night before his first ride was postponed last Tuesday. Of course he did, despite the awesome journey he was about to undertake.

Since that day, when he suffered some disappointment at the postponement, he remained secluded on the cape. He studied and ran through simulated flights and waited for the moment when his shoulder was tapped by someone saying, "It's time, Alan."

Shepard was born 37 years ago in East Derry, N.H., son of a former army man, Alan Barrett Shepard, Sr.

Ivan Hackler, who taught Shepard in East Derry's school years ago, recalls that his student had a keen interest in science as a youngster.

"A good student and a boy extremely well liked," Hackler said. "He was a good athlete, particularly in baseball and football."

His mother has said that "Alan has never feared anything."

Beachhead in the Caribbean

PREMIER FIDEL CASTRO'S May Day announcement has brought the first communist state into this hemisphere. By declaring Cuba a "socialist" nation he has placed himself and his country under the leadership of "the powerful socialist world headed by the great Soviet Union and the popular Republic of China."

International Communism now has a beachhead near the shores of North America and—for Moscow's immediate purposes a more practical consideration—near the shores of Latin America. Russia thus has scored a major victory in the cold war, potentially more important than the struggles in either Laos or The Congo. It raises, too, a greater danger, for a Communist outpost is now on the periphery of the United States.

How this new situation is to be handled constitutes one of the major problems for President Kennedy. His approach to the problem has been compromised by the participation of the United States in the recent unsuccessful landing attempt of the Cuban rebels.

The whole Cuban situation, in fact, is much more serious today than it was before the fiasco of the United States supported invasion.

Obviously, from the Communist standpoint, Cuba can be considered only as a beginning. We may expect the cold war to be intensified in Latin America from now on. We may expect, too, that with Russian help Cuba may be developed as a showcase for the benefit of observers in this hemisphere, an example of the economic advantages to be derived from close association with the Soviet Union.

Whether these benefits will blind Latin Americans to the other characteristics of a Communist regime remains to be seen: the destruction of a free press, the persecution of the church, the boasted abolition of elections. To some of the South American republics which for years have known only dictatorships some of these deprivations might not appear as serious flaws in the political structure.

The Organization of American States, which comprises all the countries of this hemisphere except Canada, recently demonstrated its united stand against the heavy-handed dictatorship in the Dominican Republic. If it can be similarly united in its stand against Communist encroachment—which is dictatorship in a different form—the Soviet tide may be stopped at the Cuban beachhead.

That, it seems, will be the first task of Mr. Kennedy and his associates.

Fishline With a Weak Spot

CANADA IS STILL HOPING for an agreement among nations to widen territorial waters adjoining its coast.

This is the reply Mr. MacLean, minister of fisheries, has given in Parliament to a suggestion from Mr. Lester Pearson that the government impose—unilaterally if necessary—a 12-mile jurisdictional limit on offshore waters to protect Canadian fisheries.

A line to give Canada exclusive fishing jurisdiction for a distance 12 miles from shore—the "six-plus six" formula advanced by this country at the last convention on the law of the sea—has been widely favored by maritime nations. It has not, however, been accepted by enough of them to make the convention world-wide.

How it could be applied by agreement among some nations concerned, but with dissent from others, is as difficult to determine as is Mr. Pearson's alternative—unilateral definition.

Lacking agreement, any line setting territorial waters can be established and maintained only if a country is prepared to defend it. Defence would entail arrest of any foreign vessel violating the line.

Should an intruding foreign vessel resist arrest, how would the aggrieved country—Canada in this instance—enforce its order?

normal state of health. None, however, can condone a traffic which exposes teenagers to addiction in the way indicated by the questionnaire's replies.

Here is a crime that deserves the severest kind of treatment. And here is a condition—in which teenagers see no harm in using heroin occasionally—which demands emphatic education.

Illegal traffickers obviously stand to reap high profits if they can recruit new users of narcotics, particularly if the recruits are young and have relatively long and narcoticsally destroyed lives before them. When peddlers are prepared to introduce youngsters to dependence on narcotics, they can claim sympathy from no one.

Mr. Elmore's findings should produce quick and intensive investigation and the severest possible action against those who are using youth's ignorance and inexperience to swell the ranks of narcotic addicts.

"... and on our left, just out of sight behind the Patagonian Petunias, a rather rare visitor to these parts, a denizen of the desert... the flaming Sudan Snapdragon..."

WHERE INFORMALITY RULES

Up the Garden Path—and Far Beyond

NO doubt through some oversight, my garden was omitted from the list of those to be visited by the public in connection with the Spring Garden Festival. While it is too late to do anything about it now, of course, it is only fair to residents and visitors alike to let them know what they are missing. Perhaps a brief description of the beauties of the property would make up in part for a lack of opportunity to see it. Perhaps to many horticulturists this would even be preferable.

It should be made plain at the outset that the general scheme of the landscaping is informal. That is, there are here no Italian Gardens, regimented banks of bloom, or carefully circumscribed plots.

The whole effect is one of casual acceptance of nature's bounty, an air of gay abandonment—as though, indeed, the place had been abandoned for about eight years.

The straight line is abhorred, the geometrical pattern eschewed. Even the lawn looks as though it had been eschewed by goats.

Here no man-made artifice has spoiled nature's plan; this is nature, if not in the raw, then certainly somewhat underdone. And just at this time of year it is at its best.

Fine Example
Observe, for instance, this robust fungus growing from a rotting stump—as fine an example of pestiferous moldiflorum as one is likely to see. Observe the care with which the stump has been preserved to provide a proper setting for the fungus, just one small indication of the forethought and planning that have gone into this veritable fairyland.

In a shady corner of the lawn where those lovely mosses, the creeping green horridum, the carpetum instabilibus, and the velvet turquoise spongiolum ubiquitous (dwarf variety) have left a patch of grass, may be seen a display of panther agave, probably unequalled in Saanich. These delicate little growths, so appealing in their quaintness, provide a sight that will do your heart good.

This pretty well completes the cultivated portion of the garden. The rest of the property has been allowed to retain its natural charm and thus display those features of woodland undisturbed that so delight the naturalist.

In a little clearing, pressed in upon by the burgeoning greenery, will be found a hardy brood, with its accompanying slugs. This item, a carryover from last year's vegetable fiasco—er, patch—demonstrates the phenomenon of growth-in-association exhibited by such well known examples as the oak mistletoe or lawn grass-dandelion partnerships.

Within a glance of the eye may be seen arbutus, wild cherry, tamar blackberry, wild apple, cascara, balsam, tamar blackberry, maple, osier dogwood, alder, douglas fir, tamar blackberry, cedar, red currant, twinberry, tamar blackberry, bracken, aspen, willow and tamar blackberry—a vision of luxuriance and sheer resurgence that would excite any horticulturist.

(Sedatives may be procured from the booth in the main driveway.)

The spreading tracery overhead and on either side forms a green hell—er, hall—that seems to lead on and on into still more inviting nooks and vistas. (Whistles are provided for those visitors who are without a compass. A sharp blast given repeatedly will usually be heard by first aid attendants and draegermen if the wind is in the right quarter.)

Some little effort may be required of the really conscientious visitor, for here are no tiled paths or macadamized ways—just the soft moss underfoot, the green tracery to right and left, the thrusting foliage before and behind, and overhead the spreading fronds of maple, aspen, fir and tamar blackberry.

And so, as the sun sinks slowly to the mossy ground and breathe a final despairing blast on the whistle. Surely, with dogs, they will find us.

LONDON:

Counting Heads

By MICHAEL FRAYN

IT WAS census night in the workhouse. Indeed, it was census night in Buckingham Palace, and in the Soken of Peterborough. It was even census night at the Frayns.

I was counting everyone present, as required under the Census Act, 1920, and calling the figures out to my wife, who was casting them up on a small adding machine. I remember I had reached a total of one, and was thinking of retiring to bed, when my wife pointed out that I had forgotten to count myself, and we finally laid the schedule aside with the score standing as near as dammit at two.

Just then there was a loud knocking at the front door. When I opened it, a kind of bore or eagle composed of compressed human beings burst across the hall and bore me down.

"Excuse me," said a small man, raising his hat as he shot across my stomach. "Merry census!" cried the owner of a stiletto heel which paused briefly on my right bicep.

I picked myself up and was swept into the living room with the rest of the stampede.

Pouring Drinks

By the time I got inside, people were already pouring themselves drinks and putting records on the gramophone. "I say—" I began, but I was interrupted by a large man who jabbed me in the ribs and shouted: "Have you seen George? I think I ought to tell him there are another five or six car loads coming over."

More and more people crowded into the room, climbing over the furniture and knocking things down. A sudden eddy in the population brought me face to face with my wife, hard up against the bookcase.

"What's going on?" I whimpered. "I don't know," she replied, "but do you realize it's getting on for midnight? And that if you don't take down the name, address, sex, marital status, and birthplace of everyone present at midnight you are going to be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds?"

I started interrogating people wildly, and was on the point of giving way to something akin to despair when I came across a tall, sporty gent who said he was 36, male, unmarried, born in England (excluding Monmouthshire), and called George.

"I say," said George kindly, "you make me feel a tiny bit guilty, rushing round collecting names in that frightfully responsible way. I mean, in a sense I was the fellow who inflicted this horrible shower upon you. You see, I had a couple of friends staying the night at my place, and it suddenly occurred to me what a bore it was going to be asking them all those rather intimate questions. So I thought, why don't we all go over and have a drink with a man I know called Harry? If we can stick at his place until midnight, the whole dreary business will be up to him."

Four Already

"So off we went. Trouble was, Harry and his wife had four friends in already. That made nine of us altogether, and there are only eight spaces on the bally form. A ticklish problem, old boy. I don't mind telling you. Well we got the old grey matter working, and decided the thing to do was to shoot off and plant ourselves on a rather dim man Harry knew called Plater. Dim as he was, though, even old Plater knew when he was up against it, and off we all staggered once more, reinforced by Plater, Plater's wife, Plater's aunt, and Plater's five kids, round to Plater's brother-in-law."

"That's how it's been all evening, old bean, door to door, pillar to post. No idea how we picked on you, but I think there are about a hundred or so of us now. Look, I feel a shade responsible for all this. It's still only five to twelve—I wonder if we shouldn't all slope off and park ourselves on a man I know who lives just round the corner. Might be a frightfully sound type of chap to have around just now. I've always wanted to see a count counting." (By special arrangement with The Guardian.)

THE DIEFENBAKER GOVERNMENT REJECTS MR. MACMILLAN'S PROPOSAL

Atlantic Trading Area: the Lines Have Been Drawn, the Great Debate Is Under Way

OTTAWA: It is clear now that the Conservative government, through Finance Minister Donald Fleming, has flatly rejected British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's call for a North Atlantic free trade area. Mr. Fleming stated the government's position in terms that leave no doubt in anyone's mind of the future course the Conservatives intend pursuing, in the face of what appear to be insurmountable obstacles.

Instead of actively seeking Canadian participation in the great events now shaping up in Europe, Mr. Fleming said Canada intends standing aside. From her position on the sidelines she will demand there be no obstacles raised to Canadian exports by any trade groupings in Europe, and, if all else fails, Canada will seek to gain favorable entry for her products in new markets, although he did not say what new markets.

His speech in the House of Commons last week, and that by Opposition leader Pearson that preceded it, have set the stage for one of those vital political battles in Canadian history. This whole issue, involving as it does the economic and political security of the entire Western world, did not arise overnight.

For several years now it has been smouldering just beneath the surface, as the Liberal and Conservative parties grappled with the immense political problems involved, and groped toward a clear-cut policy.

The recent visit to Ottawa of Prime Minister Macmillan seemed to provide the necessary spark, and today the issue is in full flame. It is of such paramount importance that only a federal general election can decide the outcome.

Mr. Pearson's case was unequivocal. He has completely committed the Liberal party to the concept of an economic community of the North Atlantic, fully in line with that outlined by Mr. Macmillan.

Mr. Pearson made a point of quoting from the various speeches Mr. Macmillan has made on the subject, to ensure there is no confusion in regard to the stand taken by the U.K.

He used these words of the British Prime Minister: "I have no doubt of what our aim should be. We ought to try to work for the largest area of free trade that we can create. Free trade for a free world. That may still be a vision. It may be a long time before it can take practical shape. Yet many new and vital ideas are now being discussed by practical men which a few years ago would have been dismissed as impractical dreams."

He reminded the government benches of what Mr. Macmillan had to say about the Commonwealth preferences while he was in Ottawa, that the "British market" might be a declining market, and quoted a statement made Feb. 27 by Britain's Lord Privy Seal, that "Britain would have no objection to a reduction of the preferences" that her exports enjoy in Commonwealth countries if the Six (the European Common Market) wanted to start negotiations to that end.

We have this invitation from the U.K., said Mr. Pearson, to assist and encourage the development of an Atlantic economic community. And he said Canada "should be in the forefront in starting such negotiations rather than hindering them."

"We should encourage European economic as well as political integration, on a basis of expanded, not restricted trade, and then we should do everything we can to convert that European community into an Atlantic trading area, with which, stage by stage, other free countries could be associated," said Mr. Pearson.

He told the House there are four courses open to Canada.

1. To work for the maximum of economic self-sufficiency, that is, economic nationalism, of the kind we had from 1930 to 1935 under the late Right Hon. R. B. Bennett.

This course, said Mr. Pearson, "might have some tempting short-run attractions, but he said, 'surely the lessons of contemporary history and contemporary politics show that you cannot export unemployment in that way. If we try to do so, we will add to unemployment instead of reducing it. That is why we (the Liberals) are opposed to that solution.'"

2. Economic integration with the United States, in a continental free trade area.

"Surely," said Mr. Pearson, "that should be a last resort, for one reason especially; namely, how could we keep our separate political identity in such a situation?"

3. A policy of continued reliance on GATT—the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade—as the international agency for broadening the area for freer trade throughout the world.

Mr. Pearson said GATT has been effective, but, he asked, "can GATT do much more...?" He said that in his view "a new impetus is required, and that can be given without contradiction to GATT by the Atlantic countries themselves."

4. The careful, stage by stage building of an Atlantic economic community. "This is not going to be done in a week or a month or a year. It is going to take a long time. During the process of development the same steps will have to be taken to protect industries that are immediately affected as are being taken successfully in Europe today in respect of industries which have been affected by the Common Market. This can be done, and should be done, over a period of five, ten, or 15 years."

"I know all the difficulties in the way. I have mentioned them many times in this House. But I do not believe there is any other solution to our international economic and perhaps our international political difficulties."

"There is no other solution which will be big enough and deep enough than the one I have just mentioned," said Mr. Pearson. "The important thing now is to get the process started."

"This is a matter of political will more than economic argument. This government had a wonderful opportunity to begin that process in 1957 when the U.K. made an offer of free trade between the two countries. Even as late as 1958 the Prime Minister of the U.K. said, while in this country, that offer was still on the table."

"It is not on the table any longer; it has been brushed under the rug."

Mr. Pearson said "it is not too late now. But it may soon be too late if the European Common Market completes its development, and the introduction into it of the European Free Trade Area is successful. It may be too late to bring about conditions for a wider common market if no action is taken on this side of the Atlantic."

For his part, Mr. Fleming declared his continued faith in the Commonwealth preferences (although Prime Minister Macmillan himself has cast doubt on their future value to Canada) and in GATT, as the instrument for the expansion of Canadian trade.

He accused Mr. Pearson of turning his back on GATT, although nothing in Mr. Pearson's speech would indicate any rejection of GATT.

Of the Commonwealth preferences, Mr. Fleming told the House "they still have an important place in the thinking of the Canadian government when we realize the advantages that these preferences have offered to Canadian producers, and above all to Canadian agricultural producers."

Mr. Fleming, in spite of Mr. Macmillan's clear intention of negotiating for Britain's entry to the Common Market, said "we are speaking about something that is very tentative. Indeed, in some respects, hypothetical, because it is perfectly clear that the government of the U.K. is not prepared to join a European economic community on the basis of the treaty of Rome, and so far France has given no indication that it is prepared to consent to any modification of that treaty."

"So, when we are talking on this subject, let hon. members opposite be frank enough not to talk about it as though it were not what it is: something very tentative, indeed, and hypothetical in some respects," said Mr. Fleming.

He denied Canada has threatened to retaliate if the Common Market nations, in arriving at a common external tariff, raise the tariff barriers against Canadian products.

But, said Mr. Fleming, "we have done our duty in warning those other countries that if a course were taken which had the effect of closing Canadians out of certain markets, then inevitably Canadians, being enterprising people, would be looking for markets elsewhere."

Nowhere in his speech was there any reference to the speeches of Mr. Macmillan on the subject of a North Atlantic free trade area.

But, indirectly, Mr. Fleming stated his opposition by criticising Mr. Pearson's stand.

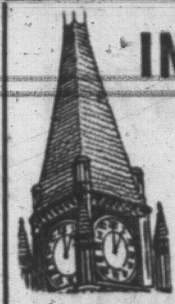

"We do not intend to be parties to any narrow approach of the kind that is proposed by the Leader of the Opposition," said Mr. Fleming. "... what he is in effect proposing to do is to forswear and abandon the principle of multilateral trade for which Canada stands. He is proposing that Canada and the other countries of the North Atlantic area should turn their backs upon trade with countries such as Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Africa and other countries."

"If the policies (of Mr. Pearson) were followed... it would mean that Canada would be held within the closed area of the North Atlantic, and that would not be good for Canada."

Mr. Pearson, of course, enunciated no policies that would restrict Canadian trade. On the contrary, he foresees the day when, if the North Atlantic community comes into being, the advantages of free trade can be extended to all of the free world.

In any event, the lines have been drawn, the great debate is under way.

IN PARLIAMENT

'Political Hacks' Conducting Census

(From Times News Service)

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—The government sustained attacks in the Commons Thursday on widely different flanks.

Arnold Peters (CCF—Timiskaming), charged political patronage in appointment of census takers.

In the Senate, Senator A. K. Hugessen (L—Quebec) said government statements supporting the granting of absolute power to the national revenue minister in certain tariff decisions "is the kind of argument advanced by the dictator throughout the ages."

The Commons, despite the uproar over the census and grain, approved the $38,483,062 spending estimates for the trade department in 1961-62 and began discussion on the $82,707,036 appropriation for the northern affairs department.

Mr. Peters began an old-time political fight by stating that "political hacks" of the Progressive Conservative party appointed as census takers would use the information they obtained in the census for political purposes.

Trade Minister Hees, the minister responsible for this year's census, said the charge was "irresponsible," "ridiculous," "derogatory" and "unfair."

All census takers took an oath of secrecy and could be fined or imprisoned or both for breaking it.

Mr. Peters said the census takers in his riding include the defeated Conservative candidate in the last election, a Conservative party organizer and the wife of the president of the Conservative association.

Senator Hugessen told the Upper House that the power that would be given the revenue minister in a tariff bill "is exactly the kind of argument that Fidel Castro is forcing down the throats of the Cuban people at the present moment."

He was speaking in the continuing Senate debate on a government bill to change the definition of imports to be designated as of a class or kind made in Canada.

The Liberal majority in the Senate has said it will try to kill a provision in the bill giving the minister arbitrary power in some tariff decisions.

How Much Are CBC Performers Paid?

Some members of the Commons broadcasting committee tried to draw a bead on the payments made to CBC television performers.

CBC president Marcel Oulmet indicated that it's a pretty big target.

Jack H. Horner (PC—Acadia) raised the issue.

The Alberta rancher-MP wanted to know the frequency with which some performers appear on CBC and how much they are paid.

Mr. Oulmet said there were 19,000 performers last year who made 99,000 performances. He suggested it would be a big chore to answer Mr. Horner's question.

J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonaville-Twillingate) said that kind of inquiry "is not going to save money for the taxpayer." The number of people who would have to be employed to tabulate the information would constitute "a winter works project."

"I've had this kind of objection before," Mr. Horner replied in a loud voice. "It does not stop me one bit."

Gordon Chown (PC—Winnipeg South) suggested that the CBC say how many performers are in various payment brackets: how many over $20,000 a year, for example.

"I'm sure there are dozens who earn a great deal more than management," he said.

Mr. Oulmet said a star "at the peak of his glory" might get a very large payment one year, and not appear the next year.

On the question of labor relations, Marcel Carter, vice-president in charge of administration, said there is no "featherbedding" in the CBC. There was no question of union contracts requiring people to stand by doing nothing.

In 1959 a total of 11,920 men and 10,323 women died of cancer in Canada.

$55,000 EXPERIMENT BY CITIZENSHIP COUNCIL

Project to Develop Nation's Youth

OTTAWA (CP)—A three-year, $55,000 experimental project aimed at developing responsible citizenship in young Canadians was approved Thursday at the 21st annual meeting of the Canadian Citizenship Council.

Ralph Albrant of Toronto, chairman of a special committee set up to consider the project, told delegates that the council felt a need existed in a democratic society "for mature persons who in their youth had experience in participating effectively in solving their own problems—problems real to them—at any given time."

Such citizenship participation would be invaluable in developing interests and experience as preparation for adult responsibilities later on, he said.

The plan consists of recruiting young Canadians now engaged in group activity at the regional, provincial or national level for seminars and conferences to be planned and conducted by the young adults themselves. They would be drawn from such groups as the YMCA, chambers of commerce and others.

Manager for the B.C.I.T.F. The car is being driven by a Vancouver team for Rootes Motors (hence the Ontario license plate). Be on hand to welcome the first car in at the fair grounds May 6, at 6:00 P.M., P.D.T.

Canada's first cross-country rally is now just hours away from Vancouver's B.C.I.T.F.

The British Columbia International Trade Fair Car Rally arrives in Vancouver Saturday evening.

Plan to see the big rally wind-up and special driving contest Saturday, May 6. Watch for the rallyists as they check in at the Shell service station on Hastings Street (opposite the Shellburn refinery). First cars will probably begin checking in at about 5:30 P.M., P.D.T.

Rally cars will then go along Hastings Street to arrive at the Pacific National Exhibition grounds from 6:00 P.M. on.

ONE OF THE major sporting events of 1961 started last Sunday in Montreal, and ends 4098 miles later in Vancouver at 6:00 P.M., Saturday, May 6. It's the British Columbia International Trade Fair Car Rally—the longest, most gruelling test of driving skill ever held in the Western Hemisphere. All across Canada, this exciting rally has been drawing huge crowds; bringing British Columbia; and the International Trade Fair to the attention of the nation.

212 top drivers in 106 cars started in the rally. Famous international rallyists, like Hans Ingier and Nils Hagan of Norway and Homer Trotter of Watertown, New York; two-time winner of the Canadian National Winter rally. Seven ladies' teams are also entered.

Rally Rules

Procedure will be largely the same as in other great international rallies. Here are a few details for readers who are newcomers to this fascinating sport:

• A rally is not a race. It is a contest of skill and timing for drivers and navigators, and a test of the reliability and endurance of their cars.

• The winner is the car that gets the fewest penalty points.

Check your newspaper sports columns and radio and TV sports broadcasts for last-minute news.

And make a note to watch a complete report on the rally on the CBC TV network, Saturday, May 13, 1-1:30 P.M., P.D.T.

• Penalty points are handed out for damage to the car, for mechanical failure, for unsafe conduct, for violation of traffic laws and for failing to arrive exactly on schedule at numerous control stations.

• The timing is ferociously precise. Cars are penalized a point for every minute, they're off schedule—early or late.

• Other penalties: for failing to report at controls; for approaching controls from the wrong direction (i.e. getting lost).

• Exact details of the route are not revealed to drivers until they arrive at the starting point. There they receive special maps to guide them along some sections of the route—nothing but written instructions for other sections.

• Changes of flat tires are the only repairs allowed during overnight stops. All other servicing and repairs must be made in the daytime while the rally is in progress, when lost time will cost points.

Geography Book Revised To Remove Americanisms

The provincial education department has "Canadianized" as many school texts as possible and is keeping a constant lookout for inaccuracies, an official said Thursday.

He was commenting on recent criticisms from Vancouver about textbooks referring to "our president," virtually ignoring Canadian history, and containing misinformation about B.C. climate.

The criticism, specifically referred to "Our World," a Grade IX geography book.

The education department official said this book was extensively revised and portions rewritten in 1958 to correct inaccuracies and Americanisms.

He said he knew of no copy of the old edition still in use. But the department is checking on this. This edition appeared to be the basis of the criticism, he added.

One of the complaints was about a reference to the rainfall at Ocean Falls being less than at Victoria. The official said this did not appear in the text, though a color map of the world with poor register—overlapping color printing—might indicate a higher rainfall here.

In order to give a better picture for Canadians, three new books have been introduced to Grade V and VI social studies classes.

They are "Canada and Her Neighbors," "Lands of Europe and Asia" and "Southern Lands," all Canadian books.

Strong recommendations in the Chant Royal Commission report on education for more Canadian texts were "really an endorsement of what we had already been doing," said the B.C. official.

Lists of suggested study books contain mostly Canadian material, he said.

He said the school texts are under constant supervision and revision.

WEDGWOOD BENN
...ineligible?

Peer Wins Election; Back in Commons

BRISTOL, England (Reuters) — Anthony Wedgwood Benn, 35, Britain's "reluctant peer" Thursday won re-election to the House of Commons seat he lost when he was ordered to move into the House of Lords as successor to his father, Viscount Stansgate.

The results of a by-election here gave Labor member Benn 23,275 votes to 10,231 for his Conservative opponent, Malcolm St. Clair.

Benn's majority of 13,044 was more than double the 5,827-vote margin which he received over St. Clair when they ran against each other in 1959.

What effect the election will have on Benn's campaign to return to the House of Commons was uncertain.

St. Clair can file an election petition in the British High Court to have the ballot invalidated on the grounds that Benn was ineligible to run for the Commons.

During the campaign, Conservative Prime Minister Macmillan, in a letter supporting St. Clair's candidacy, declared that since Benn "became Viscount Stansgate last November he has been and is disqualified from sitting in the House of Commons."

Benn, first elected to the Commons in 1950 when he was 25 and who has come to be regarded as one of the Labor party's bright young men, has refused to take his House of Lords seat despite losing his seat in the House of Commons.

When an election was announced to name his successor as representative from this western port city, he threw his hat into the ring again as Labor candidate.

BETTER UNDERSTANDING 15 Miles of Film Feature Francais

Parley-vous Francais? Non. Ecrivez-vous Francais? Non. You see, mademoiselle, ma tante she is plumeless.

In spite of the above, the French teachers of Victoria— from both public and private schools systems — are determined to aid the cause of bilingualism in bilingualistic Canada and, above all, to promote better understanding of French Canada by English-speaking residents here.

To this end teams of French teachers are busily engaged this week in previewing some 15 miles of film for showing in the Centennial Wing of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, 1040 Moss Street, next Monday, Tuesday and Friday at 8 p.m. All those interested are invited. There will be a silver collection.

The showing of "La Semaine du Film Francais" will wind up on Saturday, May 13, at 8 p.m., with an "invitational" projection of special films.

Films to be shown have been obtained on loan from the Quebec government, the National Film Board and from various French government sources through the assistance of M. Robert Picard, consul-general de France at Vancouver.

Purpose laid down by teachers of the two associations — Provincial Modern Language Teacher's Association and Independent Schools' Association — comes under three headings:

1. As a contribution to bilingualism, since language cannot be really understood without and understanding of the background;
2. An attempt to make the public and various organizations aware of the sources of cultural material;
3. To provide enjoyment for many French and French-Canadians and their friends,

At 40 feet it is the longest movie ever undertaken by the PNE. It also features a gilded galleon, glittering sea life and a silken throne for Miss PNE. For practicality it folds in on itself and can travel at speeds of 60 miles an hour. The float is expected to cover more than 6,000 miles in its summer-long program of 25 parade appearances.

MUSHROOM VICTIMS WARNED

Hospital Treatment Vital

Hospital treatment is the only hope a person has of recovering from the deadly effects of a Panther Agaric mushroom, the type which nearly took the life of an 18-month-old Metcoshin child Wednesday.

This warning was given today by Dr. Adam Szczawinski, provincial botanist.

The botanist said emergency treatment, pending hospitalization, for anyone suspected of eating a poisonous mushroom is to induce vomiting by making them drink salt and water or mustard and water.

"But the only safe thing to do is to rush the victim to hospital," he said. "The Panther Agaric is as deadly as the bite from a venomous snake."

The mushroom, he said, appears to be quite common in the Greater Victoria district this year.

He described it as follows: A grey-brown, dingy yellow, yellow-brown or cinnamon brown cap mushroom.

"The cap usually has white or creamy-colored 'warts' on it, but sometimes these are washed away by rain.

"The mushroom has white gills and a cup-like structure at the base of the stem.

Poisonous mushrooms should be destroyed immediately on affected areas, but they should be picked up as soon as they make their appearance. Some people put crops.

CONSTITUENTS CONSPICUOUS BY ABSENCE

Public interest in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election campaign is low in Cadboro Bay.

Nobody arrived to sit in the 100 seats at St. George's Church Hall Thursday night when Social Credit candidate George Hahn and Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston arrived at 8 p.m. to speak. After waiting 25 minutes the Sacreds gave up.

SENATOR CLAIMS Car Styles Ugly Waste, Poor Taste

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Donald Cameron said Thursday that if Canadians had been design-conscious they would have refused to buy some of those monstrosities of ugliness that pass for automobiles.

The Alberta Liberal senator, director of the Banff School of Fine Arts of the University of Alberta, made the statement shortly before the Senate gave second reading — approval in principle — to a government bill to establish a National Design Council.

"Probably no other industry has been as guilty of perpetrating such horrors in the name of style, design and sheer inefficiency as the automotive industry," Senator Cameron said.

"One of the greatest examples of economic waste to be found in the world is the frantic scramble, year by year, to vary design and style changes in automobiles with a view to having models pass out of style as quickly as possible."

Porpoise At Play In Parade

One of the out-of-town floats in Victoria's May Day parade, May 22, and probably one of the more spectacular, will be Vancouver's Pacific National Exhibition entry.

Designed and fashioned by PNE workmen, the float features life-like mobile porpoise that plunges through a sea of foam-capped waves.

At 40 feet it is the longest movie ever undertaken by the PNE. It also features a gilded galleon, glittering sea life and a silken throne for Miss PNE. For practicality it folds in on itself and can travel at speeds of 60 miles an hour. The float is expected to cover more than 6,000 miles in its summer-long program of 25 parade appearances.

Liquor Ads Charge Fails

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto magistrate Thursday dismissed charges against The Globe and Mail and The Telegram of illegally advertising liquor.

Magistrate C. A. Thoburn said he was bound by the decision last September of Mr. Justice Stanley Schatz, who ruled in the Supreme Court of Ontario that the Liquor Control Act only prohibited advertising liquor for sale and was not a general prohibition of all mention of liquor.

The charges were laid more than a year ago by Vernon Singer, Liberal member of the legislature for York Centre, and Ross Whitcher, Liberal member for Bruce, before the provincial government made liquor advertising in newspapers legal.

'PLANNING FOR ABUNDANCE'

New Party Pledges Jobs By Government Guarantee

OTTAWA (CP)—The New Party Thursday unveiled a draft policy manifesto proposing a planned economy for Canada — with government-guaranteed jobs for all.

The policy declaration, "planning for abundance," proposes new controls on investment, stiffer corporation taxation, area redevelopment and national farm and fish marketing agencies—all set within a philosophy of social purpose.

FIRST OF FOUR

The document, released by the national New Party committee, is the first of four policy recommendations that will form the draft program to be submitted to the founding convention of the left-of-centre party in Ottawa this summer.

Under the banner of "a job for everyone," the manifesto described the New Party as the party of full employment.

'WILL KEEP PLEDGE'

"In its conduct of Canada's affairs, it will guarantee jobs for all willing and able to work, jobs at fair terms. The jobs not there now, it will create.

"It will keep this pledge through its program of economic planning, which will ensure an overall condition of full employment."

The policy declaration said economic planning will be developed by a committee of cabinet ministers, headed by a new minister of planning, with the provinces as partners through a federal-provincial planning and development council.

Taxation policies, a basic part of the planning program, would be aimed at diverting funds from private to public investment, redistributing the nation's income on a fairer basis and helping to regulate the pace of economic activity.

EXPANSION URGED

While maintaining opportunities for private initiative, the party platform also called for expansion of public and co-operative ownership in operating utilities, developing resources eliminating monopoly power and operating "major enterprises immediately and directly affecting the entire nation."

The draft also promised a guaranteed employment act which would enable "every jobless Canadian to claim a job as a social right by applying to the local employment office," with the government ready to supply jobs at specified skill levels at fair wage rates.

Full cost of moving or retraining a worker would be covered by the government, it said.

Priority would be given in over-all planning to social projects—houses, schools, hospitals, roads, parks and other recreational facilities, conservation projects and water-works systems.

NEW GAINS TAX

The party document promised an increase in corporation tax rates, especially on undistributed profits, cuts in "excessive" depreciation and depletion allowances, a ceiling on deductions for advertising and sales promotion, a tax on capital gains, higher succession duties.

It proposed a national energy commission to get provincial co-operation for a coordinated program of energy use.

Tariffs were described as outdated. The party would seek a fresh approach, aimed at developing free trade with the world.

There would be planned immigration—without racial discrimination—aimed at encouraging people to come to Canada.

Public Sees Rehearsal Of Trooping

Public's chances to see the trooping of the color at Work Point barracks will be four times greater at the dress rehearsal than at the ceremony.

Some 4,000 public seats will be available for the rehearsal Thursday at 2 p.m.—only 1,000 for the ceremony May 13.

But the show put on by the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will be identical in both cases except for the presence of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes. He will take the salute only at the ceremony.

The battalion, commanded by Lieut.-Col. R. F. Bruce, will parade four guards totalling 57 officers and men. Also participating will be the battalion Corps of Drums and the Royal Canadian Engineers band from Chilliwack.

Forest Firm Polices Union Talks on Site

VANCOUVER (CP)—The International Woodworkers of America (IWA) is in dispute with MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company about what can and can't be said by union officials at meetings on company property.

A spokesman for the union said the dispute began because the company was touchy about current wage negotiations.

A company official said the dispute followed union annoyance at an anti-labor statement made recently by J. V. Clyne, chairman of the company's board of directors.

The official said the warning was made this week after union officials at two Vancouver mills made violent attacks on the company.

The union has held its meetings in the lunch rooms of most of the company's mills for several years. A company official has been attending the meetings the last few years.

The company official said this method of policing was stepped up at the last provincial election to make sure the union did not use company property to discuss political matters.

Weekend 'In Navy' for Cadets

A weekend of "navy life" as guests of the RCN's Pacific Command will be enjoyed at HMCS Naden starting Friday by 275 cadets from six Island corps. Royal Canadian Sea Cadets.

Cadets, with 30 RCSC officers, will converge on Naden from Nanaimo, Shawnigan Lake, Duncan, Cowichan, Port Alberni, as well as from Victoria.

Commodore H. V. W. Groos will inspect cadets at divisions Saturday morning. The day's activities will include competitions of whaler-pulling, rifle shooting and track and field events.

That night the visitors will be entertained by the Vancouver Island division of the Navy League of Canada.

Cadets, officers and league officials will join RCN personnel at Battle of Atlantic services to be held in HMCS Naden on Sunday at 9:30 a.m. Following the service there will be a cadet march-past with Commodore Groos taking the salute.

Bloomers: the Seat of Anxiety

LONDON (AP)—A bevy of the girls' union, said in an interview, "Not panties or government were alarmed scuffles, but bloomers." Thursday to learn, they may be asked to wear old-fashioned anxiety is at the general post office's research station at Dollis Hill, London. "Yes, bloomers," Laurie Sapper, assistant general secretary. The girls work in a unit that makes super-sensitive radio tubes for use with submarine cables. The room where they work must be kept absolutely dust free. That rules out wool or cotton. Officials stipulated that the girls wear nylon undies as well as nylon overalls, nylon, they said, being dust free.

Union officers then asked the government to give the girls cash allowances so they could buy their own nylons. Replying, the government said it would supply the girls "nylon bloomers," nylon stockings and nylon overalls. Asked how inspectors could be sure the girls were wearing the government-issued bloomers, Sapper replied: "It has been suggested that they could be asked to stand near dust-recording instruments—and shake."

Mock Battle Staged At Annual Inspection

Annual inspection of Victoria's University School cadet corps—one of the oldest cadet units on the West Coast—took place at the school on Wednesday.

Inspecting officer was General Charles Foulkes, former head of the chiefs-of-staff, committee of the Canadian armed forces.

For nearly two hours the 145-strong unit marched smartly past on the playing field; put on drill displays and various demonstrations. Highlights were a rattling feu de joie and a mock battle.

Gen. Foulkes told the cadets he was going to give them a talk on discipline—but after he watched them in action he felt it was not necessary.

Platoon Cup for the smartest platoon on parade went to No. 4 platoon under the command of Cadet Lieut. Gordon

First Since Suez
CAIRO (Reuters)—The first major British credit agreement with Egypt since the Anglo-French Suez invasion was signed here Thursday. It provides for £20,000,000 ($56,000,000) of private credit by C. Tennant and Sons Company over five years at 5 per cent interest.

NEWLY-APPOINTED Australian high commissioner to Canada is David Hay, who succeeds acting high commissioner Kieran Desmond. Mr. Hay, formerly Australian ambassador in Bangkok, served as a counsellor in the high commissioner's office in Ottawa from 1950 to 1952.

Steen, of Vancouver, and the Cropper Stick for the smartest cadet was awarded to L.-Cpl. Gary Murdoch from Whitehorse, Y.T.

The corps' large enrolment is drawn from the 241 boys at University School. That figure, however, is increasing all the time and there is a shortage of space.

The school is trying to raise $140,000 from former graduates to build a new three-storey building, one floor of which will be devoted entirely to the teaching of science.

Tshombe's Future Clouded

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Central Congolese authorities today maintained a curtain of secrecy around the transfer of Katanga Province president Moïse Tshombe from Coquilhatville to Leopoldville.

A police source said Wednesday that Tshombe would be flown secretly to Leopoldville today and confined in a villa there for an "indefinite" period.

Most of the other delegates to the Coquilhatville conference also were expected to come to Leopoldville when the talks ended. President Joseph Kasavubu was reported returning by riverboat during the weekend.

DISSATISFIED

Political circles here did not hide their dissatisfaction with a statement on the Tshombe incident made by President Fulbert Youlou of the neighboring Congo republic.

Youlou was reported to have said in Brazzaville that the arrest of Tshombe was an "act of banditry." Youlou called for his release.

The political circles here considered the language used by Youlou insulting to Kasavubu and felt his statement amounted to direct interference in internal affairs of the Congo.

They also denounced Youlou's suggestion that the leaders of the Congo hold another conference in Brazzaville, across the river from Leopoldville.

Sunken Barge Not Worth Salvage Try

Salvaging the Skookum I, a derrick barge wrecked in a freak accident at Saanichton Bay last week, was shown to be impractical by an underwater survey of the damage, according to a statement by an official of Island Tug & Barge Ltd., owners of the vessel.

It was indicated that the barge will be abandoned where it lies on the mud under 35 feet of water. The derrick boom probably will be blasted off with an explosive charge to eliminate any possible menace to navigation.

Cambrian Salvor, deep-sea tug belonging to ITB, sailed from Saanichton Bay Wednesday with two Liberty ships bound for Japan where the obsolete vessels will be broken up for scrap. Four of the ships remain at the moorage where they are being readied for the tow across the Pacific.

An 11-ton propeller crashed through the deck of the Skookum I and pierced its bottom timbers when a steel cable broke which was lifting the propeller onto the deck of one of the Liberty ships. No one was hurt, but the 90-foot barge sank in minutes.

Canadian Aid

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Canadian government is contributing $1,400,000 under the Colombo Plan to cover costs of an accountancy and business administration faculty at the University of Malaya in Singapore and Kuala Lumpur.

The Singapore and Malayan governments will each contribute $215,000 towards the five-year expenditure. Five professors also will be provided by Canada, headed by Professor Leslie Wong of the University of British Columbia.

Eight Transfusions

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — A New Zealand "blue baby" was progressing satisfactorily Thursday after being given what is believed to be a record number of eight complete blood transfusions.

The premature baby received an entire new supply of blood from a donor within an hour of its birth and seven other transfusions in the next four days.

LIVING COST INDEX UNCHANGED IN APRIL

OTTAWA (UPI) — The cost-of-living index remained unchanged at 129.1 between March and April, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Declines in the cost of food, recreation and reading material balanced increases in clothing, health, personal care, tobacco and alcohol. Housing and transportation were unchanged.

The April figure — compared to an all-time high of 129.6 in November and December of last year. The index is based on costs in 1949 equalling 100.

The bureau said the food index declined from 124.0 to 123.9 as prices for food for home consumption decreased 0.2 per cent, but restaurant meals increased 0.3 per cent. Lower prices were reported for eggs, beef, veal, turkey, powdered skim milk, bananas, grapefruit and chocolate bars.

DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS HINDERED

Chant for Amalgamation

Amalgamation of Greater Victoria municipalities was urged anew Thursday by B.C. Works Minister W. N. Chant.

He said that overall development of the area is being hindered by lack of co-ordination. Mr. Chant said his views were strictly personal. Two projects which would benefit from amalgamation, he said, are an auditorium for the Victoria area and development of Foul Bay Road into a "University Way."

"This is just another of many instances where divided jurisdiction can hamper our progress," he said.

"This sort of thing just wouldn't happen if we had amalgamation."

Mr. Chant said it would be in the best interests of all citizens in the area to have co-ordinated planning. "Eventually amalgamation will come," he predicted.

AN AIRCO FURNACE GIVES YOU MORE THAN HEAT!

Look for these important extras when you choose a furnace.

Most people give a lot of attention to choosing the clothes that they wear — the car that they drive — the home that they live in. But too many take the choice of a furnace for granted! Next to the roof over your head, there is no single thing that you can buy that will give you so much comfort, peace of mind and satisfaction, providing your choice is sound!

Any automatic furnace will give you heat. The big difference is how much heat it will provide, and at what cost.

Most new furnaces look good in the showroom. The differences only show up when the furnace has been in operation in your home for a while. Then it may be too late to change!

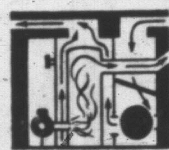

ARE YOU CONSIDERING A NEW FURNACE?

If you are thinking of changing your present heating system to one that is more modern and efficient, or if you are looking for a heating system for your new home, you are in good company. Several thousand other British Columbians are in the same position.

Some of them will be better satisfied with their new furnace than others. And those who will be most satisfied will have carefully examined not only the ability of the furnace to produce heat; they will have looked for the extra features that make their choice a sound investment for years to come.

CHECK THESE FEATURES BEFORE YOU BUY!

Here are the things you should look for when you are choosing a furnace. Experience through the years has proved that they are essential if you are going to get your money's worth from your purchase.

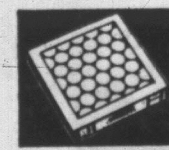

HEATING EFFICIENCY

Every gallon of heating oil or cubic foot of natural gas that you use contains a fixed amount of heat. But there is a big difference in how much of this heat your furnace will put to use, and how much it will waste. The difference is due to the basic design and construction of your furnace.

At Airco, staff engineers are constantly working on this problem of getting all the possible heat out of the fuel you use, and putting it to work in your home. Every development is thoroughly tested in the company laboratory.

While other manufacturers may adapt some of the Airco features to their particular design, only the Airco furnace has balanced engineering throughout, tested in the laboratory and in thousands of homes.

This means that every dollar that you spend on fuel buys the greatest possible amount of heat in your home. Airco's extra efficiency means big savings to you every year.

CLEAN HEAT

Both oil and gas are clean burning fuels when used in a properly made and adjusted furnace. This means that an exact balance of fuel, air and temperature must always be maintained.

Airco burners have many special features that guarantee this balance at all times.

Filters are another essential to keep clean air circulating through your house. The air filters in Airco furnaces are extra large.

They are made by Fram, and are permanently treated to trap and destroy airborne impurities, bacteria and irritating pollens. This same filter system is used successfully in many hospitals.

LONG LIFE

Like your car, or any other piece of mechanical equipment, your furnace can't run forever. But thousands of families who have Airco units in their homes for many years tell us that they have spent little or no money in replacing worn parts.

That's because, when it is a question of choosing between cost and performance on component parts, we have always insisted on quality.

For instance, all the automatic controls on the Airco furnace are the first-line products of Honeywell Controls Ltd., a leading manufacturer with an established reputation. We couldn't get controls, at any price, that would do the job better. The same applies to motors, nozzles and fittings — in fact, all the parts that we build into the furnace. The extra dollars it costs to put these superior components into the Airco furnace are more than returned to you in reliable performance.

The Airco furnace is manufactured in our Vancouver plant. Here, every part is carefully inspected, not once, but many times. Then the whole assembled furnace is given a final inspection before it's shipped. Our laboratory is constantly in use, testing to maintain quality standards.

QUIET OPERATION

The perfect furnace is one that you never see or hear. This is not an easy thing to achieve. For one thing, you need a gentle flow of warm air in every part of your home.

In order to move this amount of air, without draughts, a powerful blower is necessary. And unless this blower is properly mounted, it can cause vibration and objectionable noise.

Airco blower units are belt-driven, powered by precision built, quiet running motors. They are bench-tested, and individually fitted to every furnace. Each unit is grounded to prevent electrical interference with radio or television sets. The heavy steel casing around the Airco furnace is thoroughly insulated against heat and sound transmission — another aid to quiet operation. The rugged heat-exchanger is also free-floating, eliminating one more possible source of noise.

PROPER INSTALLATION

Regardless of the furnace you buy, a great deal of the satisfaction you get will come from a properly designed heating system and a workmanlike installation.

Airco furnaces are sold through authorized dealers. These dealers are local community craftsmen, selected because they really know the heating business.

You can trust your Airco dealer to select the correct capacity of gas or oil furnace to meet your particular need. And you can trust him to do a conscientious, efficient job of installation.

DEPENDABILITY IS OUR FIRST RESPONSIBILITY

At Airco, we are primarily concerned with the production of top-quality furnaces and warm-air heating products. This is our main business — not just a sideline.

We have been in this business for over thirty-five years. Each year, more and more people who look for value choose Airco furnaces, so we are going to be around for a long time.

While guarantee certificates are important (and you get them with Airco not only on the entire unit, but on various individual components as well) we feel that the most important guarantee you can have is the reputation and stability of the manufacturer.

This is the most important extra of all. You get it with every Airco furnace, at no additional cost!

Airco furnaces are available in over fifty models. They can be either oil or gas burning units. They come in a style and capacity to meet every possible need.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—The Joseph P. Kennedy, Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone were all at the Volino, and I think you'll admit these are pretty good names. But as they mostly ate the Sunday special—the chicken potpie—there was another "name" discussed: Lydia Brazzi. She's the wife of handsome Italian actor Rossano Brazzi. She was something of a heroine in that epicurean paradise because she'd taken off 80 pounds. How? "And I'm going to buy some," replied Basse, "just as soon as I can get together enough money to pay up my phone bills."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times. Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Linda Speed, age 12, of Teriton, Okla., for her question:

What is an Emu?

The emu is the national bird of Australia and he also has the title of Second Largest Bird in the World. He stands five feet tall, some three feet shorter than the tallest ostrich. However, he usually looks much smaller than the ostrich, who carries his neck straight and his proud head high. The emu tends to walk with a hump-shouldered slouch which does not add to his height or his good looks.

Mrs. Emu is slightly larger than her husband and neither of the big birds can fly. Their small wings are useless and their bulky bodies, long necks, and small heads are covered with long feathers as silky as the finest fur. The soft plumage is dull brown. Though he cannot fly, the emu can run at 30 miles an hour. He is also a very powerful swimmer.

One time the emu roamed freely over most of Australia along with countless numbers of his relatives. But he is a vegetarian and his fondness for roots, herbs and fruit made him a threat to the ranchers. What's more, traveling at break-neck speed, he often knocked down their fences. For these reasons, he has been hunted, and driven back to wilder plains of Australia.

The emu shares the wide open spaces with the kangaroo. Though they do not fight each other, these two native Australians are now in competition for the same food supply. Both animals have suffered great hardships since Australia has been settled by ranchers and farmers, though they still exist in sizable numbers.

Travel in Large Groups

Through most of the year, the emu travels with a herd of friends and relatives. The tracks of their big, three-toed feet lead over the dusty ground and down to the rivers. In spring, the big birds go off in pairs for the breeding season. The nest is a shallow hollow in the ground and Mrs. Emu lays seven to 12 rough, greenish-black eggs.

Like any proud mother bird, she then wants to sit on her precious eggs to keep them warm—but the papa bird will have none of this. He drives her away and sits on the eggs himself. He sits there for eight long weeks and he will not let mama help, even when the baby chicks hatch. The little darlings seem to be clad in striped pajamas. Broad bands of green and dark brown run down their necks and along the length of their rather flat bodies. To Mr. Emu, the squawking chicks are the most beautiful babies in the world.

The emu is classed in the Ratitae bird group, along with the ostrich of Africa and the rheas of South America. The gawky cassowary and the strange little kiwi, like the emu, are Australian ratites. The word ratite comes from the Latin word for raft and it refers to the flat, raft-shaped breast bone that all these birds have. Though their ancestors were flying birds, the modern ratites have been grounded for many generations.

DECORATING

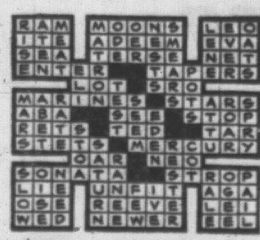

Forty-five members of the YVCA Hostess Class visited the Standard Furniture Co. recently to hear a talk on home decorating by G. W. Oliphant.

Mr. Oliphant compared home decorating with the recognized arts of painting, music, etc. A tour through the premises of the British American Paint Co. on Wednesday made up the first part of the bi-monthly four program for members of the Y's Youth Department. Paint making, canning and laboratory equipment used to test the produce were examined by the boys as part of the informal education they receive in the department.

VATICAN AUDIENCE

Pope Pledges Loyalty In Meet With Queen

(CP From AP-Reuters) — ROME — Pope John today received the Queen in audience and told her that her visit crowned the friendly relations that have existed between the Holy See and Britain since the start of the century.

It was the second meeting between the Queen, who is temporal head of the Church of England, and a pope of the Roman Catholic Church. Pope Pius XII received her and her husband, Prince Philip in private audience in 1951, before she succeeded to the throne.

Philip accompanied her to the audience today.

The 79-year-old pontiff received the royal couple alone for 26 minutes in the Vatican throne room, then led them to his library, where other members of the Queen's party were waiting.

What the Pope and the sovereign talked about in private was not revealed. But in the library afterward the Pope, speaking briefly in French, expressed his hopes for "the realization of Christian ideals of peace, charity and fraternity among men and nations."

SAYS CATHOLICS LOYAL

He spoke of the loyalty to the Crown of Catholics in Commonwealth countries. "We believe that we can guarantee to Your Majesty that they (Commonwealth Catholics) are eager to be second to none in sincere loyalty toward the Crown and the government."

The Queen wore a floor-length black gown, hip-length veil; diamond tiara and bracelets and a double strand of pearls. Prince Philip was in an admiral's dress uniform.

The Queen and the Pope exchanged gifts. Pope John gave her 20 ancient Roman coins, an artistic publication on Raphael's works and, for her children, albums of Vatican postage stamps issued during his reign.

The Queen presented the Pope with a valuable walking stick and three large, silver-framed photographs of herself, the duke and their children.

The Queen and Philip were scheduled to fly this afternoon to an airport near Ancona on the Adriatic coast; where the royal yacht Britannia was waiting to take them to Venice for a 24-hour private visit.

He was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital and released after treatment.

NON-OP UNIONS GRANTED PAY DEMANDS

New Rail Crisis on Horizon

MONTREAL (CP) — The great rail crisis is over, but another one looms on the horizon.

The end of the emergency came Thursday night with startling swiftness when the CNR and CPR announced, after hours of seemingly hopeless negotiations, that they had agreed to meet the full wage demands of the 15 non-operating unions.

It meant the finish of 18 weary months of negotiation, conciliation and dispute, and ended the threat of a nation-wide rail strike which was just 12 days off — a strike which would have closed down every railway in Canada except British Columbia's provincially-owned Pacific Great Eastern.

But the terms of the agreement made one fact depressingly clear—the whole process may well begin again next November since the new contract expires at the end of this year.

ANNOUNCED AGREEMENT

The agreement was announced in a brief statement by CNR President Donald Gordon in the downtown hotel suite where the railway and unions met in afternoon and evening sessions.

Mr. Gordon simply said the railways had agreed to implement the recommendations of the Milbain conciliation board in full, and the unions had therefore agreed to call off the strike immediately.

Then Frank Hall, the man who has led the non-op unions through negotiations since 1947, said the unions were "glad to confirm" the dispute had been settled and "the strike is hereby called off."

The new contract—not yet signed—means the 111,000 non-op all those railway employees not actually engaged in operating trains, will receive a wage increase of 14 cents an hour over their present average wage of $1.77 hourly.

And since the contract is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1960, it will mean each union member gets a handsome lump sum in back wages.

Under the terms of the conciliation board award which was handed down last September and refused by the railways, the increase was to be paid in three stages—two cents hourly retroactive to Jan. 1, 1960, five cents on Sept. 1, 1960, and a final four per cent May 1, 1961.

NAVY BALLOONIST DIES IN FALL FROM SLING

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI)—A freak accident took the life of a navy officer Thursday, minutes after he and another "sub astronaut" returned from a record flight more than 21 miles into the atmosphere aboard a 411-foot balloon.

Lt.-Cmdr. Victor G. Prather, 34-year-old father of two, was killed when he fell from the sling of a helicopter which had lifted him and Cmdr. Malcolm Ross, 41, from the Gulf of Mexico after successful descent.

Ross and Prather were clad in pressurized suits for the flight aboard the seven-acre balloon, dubbed "Stratolab No. 5." Their 113,500 feet ascent set a record for manned lighter-than-air flight.

Death Troops Operation Told

JERUSALEM (AP)—The terror of the Einsatzgruppen, the Nazi death commandos who rounded up the Jews during the war for bloody massacres, was resurrected today by prosecution witnesses in the trial of Adolf Eichmann.

Attorney-General Gideon Hausner told the court he had evidence that "Eichmann's department was in the very centre of this plan."

An official report on the Einsatzgruppen activities in the Baltic, made by Eichmann's "old friend" Franz Walter Stahlbecker, was introduced by Hausner.

He said the report spoke of killing 100,000 Jews as if it were "speaking of the canning of sardines or of herring."

Testimony on an Einsatzgruppen operation in Poland came from Abraham Aviel, who said he was a boy of 14 when the Germans occupied his village near Radom, Poland in 1942.

Eventually, Aviel said, the Germans discovered his family and they all were marched out to join about 1,000 other Jews who were led away to a graveyard.

ONE HAD TO LIVE

"I saw a group of Jews digging graves. My brother was among them. I saw him. At that moment I thought, 'One must survive so he can tell what happened.'"

"I jumped forward. I managed to reach the end of the road."

Aviel said he joined his brother on the grave-digging detail. A few days later the two fled to the woods where they met their father.

His father and brother were later killed as partisans, Aviel said.

Eleanor Kashat testified on atrocities in Latvia, where Stahlbecker was in charge. He said 5,000 Jews were shot the day after the Germans occupied Riga, the Latvian capital. Kashat said a woman who had survived an Einsatzgruppen massacre told him "those who were lucky got a bullet and those who were not lucky fell into the pit and most of them suffocated."

Fourth Chance Saturday for Saanich School Bylaw

Ratepayers in the rural areas of Saanich Peninsula will vote Saturday on a new $875,000 school building bylaw.

The vote will bring to an end three months of extensive campaigning by proponents of and opponents of the school building program—a program which has been defeated at the polls three times in the past two years.

Polls will be opened from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Polling booths will be located in all schools (except mean increasing the shift system in both junior high and elementary schools, officials say.

Biggest item on the program is the proposed new high school at Wesley Road, Cordon Bay, planned at a cost of $340,000.

While all property owners agree there is an urgent need for schools, the new high school has been the controversial factor in the program. It

The controversy has centered around whether the high school should be equipped with a gymnasium and facilities for home economics and industrial arts.

A section of the school district favors these facilities while a second faction is strongly opposed to them.

The bylaw also calls for the provision of additional rooms to many of the district's elementary schools.

Cost to taxpayers is estimated to be less than a million dollars of taxable assessment.

The provincial government will pay about 75 per cent of the cost, leaving the school district to raise about $175,000.

Under the bylaw, Brentwood school will be enlarged at a cost of $25,000, while Beaver Lake will get two additional classrooms, together with extensions to the present building to provide janitor storage and book storage area. The cost will be $30,000.

Other additions are planned with additional space or renovated.

New heating systems will also be installed in some schools where wood and coal are still in use, thus eliminating the need for additional janitorial help.

In addition to the construction costs, the bylaw provides for the furnishing and equipping of the buildings to minimum standards established by the provincial government.

Many of the schools are not furnished to standards set by law.

MONTE ROBERTS

When the sirens sounded this morning, I, for one, wasn't worried.

I knew it couldn't be an invasion.

Who would want to invade a place with weather like this in May?

I understood there were some people who looked with disfavor on Operation Tocsin.

Times staffer Tony Dickason, who, in the line of duty has made a close study of civil defence, says these people are simply anti-tocsin.

(That's a joke, son, and hard-har har.)

And then there was Old Vic's Uncle Zeke's cousin Elmer.

When the sirens wailed, he took two aspirins and a quart of scotch, and was thus prepared for any eventuality.

But it was obvious to all observers that those best prepared for the exercise were the B.C. Electric workmen.

They go underground at 8 a.m. every day.

Did you notice the strange silence in the vicinity of the Legislative Buildings when the sirens stopped?

What a whale of a difference the absence of the cabinet can make.

There is also Old Vic's Uncle Zeke's other cousin, Elmer, Jr.

Elmer, Jr., refuses to worry about fall-out.

Says he fell out with his wife 40 years ago and has lived happily ever after.

There is one pretty young thing who is doing her best to go along with today's exercise.

She says she is no longer going to kick over-ardent swains in the shin with her needle-pointed shoes.

Just going to slap them, she says.

A much more civil defence, in her opinion.

However, I've really shouldn't poke fun at today's Operation Tocsin, which, after all, was only an exercise on paper.

I hope there's lots of paper left when the real thing comes along.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The younger section of the Junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey Restaurant parking lot for a field trip to Mount Douglas Park.

A number of members of the senior branch will go to Courtenay on Saturday to make plans to form a branch of the Natural History Society there.

Dr. J. Beattie MacLean, director of counselling at Victoria College, will speak on "Present Day Career Opportunities in Professions and Industry" at a meeting of the Tolmie Parent-Teacher Association on Monday at 8 p.m. in the Tolmie School auditorium.

Victoria business firms and individuals were warned by police today to be on the lookout for bad cheques.

The warning followed up overnight theft of a cheque-writing machine and a number of cheques from Island Farms Dairy, 2220 Blanshard.

The cheques are Royal Bank of Canada, Government Street branch, without serial numbers.

About 40 persons interested in community planning will see three short films Monday at 12:30 p.m. on urban growth and renewal. The program, arranged by Capital Region Planning Board, will be presented in the National Film Board Auditorium, 816 Government.

Monthly meeting of the Victoria Numismatic Society will be held in the lower room of the Art Gallery on Moss Street at 8 p.m. on Monday.

City Council Fights On Centennial Plans

Fireworks over handling of next year's centennial celebration broke out in city council today.

Ald. M. H. Mooney launched a single-handed attack against what he claimed were unauthorized actions by the centennial committee.

From the other flank, Ald. Michael Griffin sniped at the tourist industry for taking a back seat in helping pay for the city's 100th birthday party that is expected to produce a tourist bonanza.

Both lost their battles, although several times arguments between Ald. Mooney on one side and Mayor Percy Scurrell and Ald. Edgelow on the other came close to the shouting stage.

Council finally cut a requested $50,000 appropriation for the centennial committee in half on the understanding it would donate more money next year.

Ald. Mooney pointed out the city previously approved $2,000 for hiring a centennial secretary through the city's personnel department.

Instead, he charged, the secretary was hired without advertising of the opening, prior screening by the personnel department or establishment of the wage scale.

Ald. Mooney also charged that an assistant was hired without reference to council or screening by the personnel department and the permanent office was located outside of City Hall.

"We're off on the wrong foot on the whole deal to start with," he said.

NO FAULT

Mayor Percy Scurrell angrily retorted that he could not find any fault with the committee's actions and described some of Ald. Mooney's contentions as "ridiculous."

"Do you want results or do you want to go by the book," the mayor demanded. "I don't know what, all this row is about."

The mayor admitted the opening was not advertised, because "we were looking for a special man for a special job."

Ald. Edgelow, chairman of centennial committee, also retorted he did "not know" what all this fuss is about. The personnel officer told me he was satisfied.

He said an outside office was obtained because there was no room for the secretary in City Hall. The secretary's assistant now has an application form on file at the personnel department.

"People criticized us for not getting this thing going fast enough so we're trying to push ahead," Ald. Edgelow said.

Council rejected Ald. Mooney's motion requiring specific council approval before the committee can spend any more of its appropriation this year.

Also rejected was a motion by Ald. Griffin requiring the committee to obtain matching donations from businessmen before it could spend any of the city's money.

BALLET ENTHUSIAST HURTS BACK

An 18-year-old city girl is in good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital today after injuring her back while dancing at home Thursday night.

Gail Pellett, 2189 Neil Street, was taken to hospital by Oak Bay firemen after she fell while executing a difficult step in the family rumpus room.

Her mother said the girl had just returned from seeing the "Royal Ballet" film starring prima ballerina Margot Fonteyn at a local theatre.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1961—PAGE 17

Paper 'Bombing' Wipes Out City

But Government Survives Up-Island

By Staff Reporters

At 8 a.m. today civil defence sirens sounded to give warning that an enemy attack by air was likely.

The civil defence organization, receiving this first warning of trouble, started to work on evacuation of this area, and by 10:15 a.m., when sirens wailed that attack was imminent, 49,000 had been sent to safety in their own cars.

The 10:15 warning was a signal to take cover, and evacuation had to stop.

At 10:50 a five-megaton bomb dropped on Brothie Ledge and the blast and resulting 280-foot tidal wave killed or drowned everyone within a five-mile radius of ground zero.

Therefore, those who decided to take a chance and sit out the attack, and who were anywhere within the circle bounded by View Royal, Royal Oak, Glenkingsop Lake, Mount Douglas and Cadboro Bay, now are dead—dead.

That was the situation posed by Exercise Tocsin 1961, a nationwide civil defence drill in which practically every city, town and hamlet in the country took part, and which was formally opened by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

It was assumed that within 18 minutes of the first alert a missile-born bomb dropped at Cold Lake, Alta. Within minutes others were dropping all over the North American continent.

The bomb which obliterated Victoria was dropped by one of a fleet of manned bombers which proceeded south along the Pacific coast.

GOVERNMENT FLEES

As far as Victoria was concerned, its chief problem was in establishing the seat of government at emergency headquarters in Nanaimo. Officials began leaving with the sound of the first siren at 8 a.m., and eventually more than 200 federal, provincial and army officials were at work in the drill hall at Nanaimo Army Camp.

The drill hall setup was an exact replica of the plan to be followed after construction of an actual steel and concrete bunker at Camp Nanaimo.

Heading the federal party was Justice Minister Davie Fulton, regional provincial liaison commander, who said he was "sorry" that Premier Bennett was not on hand. The premier was reported on holiday in the interior.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, one of eight cabinet ministers on hand, said at press time the exercise had gone well. The public had responded well by not becoming alarmed at the siren warnings.

Deputy provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace said at least 50

$3,000 Damage In School Raid

By MICHAEL ROSE

City police and juvenile authorities are still seeking young vandals who broke into Victoria High School early Thursday in a campaign of senseless violence.

The damage was reported to police at 7:45 a.m. Thursday by the morning shift janitor but information was not made public until 9 p.m. the same day.

The veil of silence was explained by school buildings and grounds superintendent W. H. Smith as policy in these cases.

He said school board officials are usually cautious about publicizing methods of entry and types of destruction "because it often starts off a pattern where the things are repeated in one or two more schools."

City police described the outbreak, which destroyed equipment, files and desks, as the worst violence to a school in the city's history.

LIKE VANCOUVER

In a manner reminiscent of Vancouver's wave of school destruction in December of 1959, the vandals smashed at least 28 typewriters, poured acid on desks and chairs, scattered filing cabinets and their contents and slashed couches and chairs.

Mr. Smith said damage would total $2,000 to $3,000 when "all the odds and ends become apparent," but other private estimates ranged even higher including an estimated $2,000 for the typewriters alone.

PAST MIDNIGHT

The raid was believed to have occurred after midnight when the night janitor is said to have gone off shift.

Entry was gained by smashing a ground floor window and the first target was a glass display case in the main hallway containing a number of

BRENTWOOD BAY

War Canoes To Race Sunday

The blue waters of Brentwood Bay Sunday will resound with cries of "salsis" as 12 sleek Indian war canoes compete in a gruelling three-mile race.

Salsis means "switch" and is chanted by the braves as they change paddle.

The race will be part of a colorful water festival sponsored by the Indian Recreation Commission of Saanich.

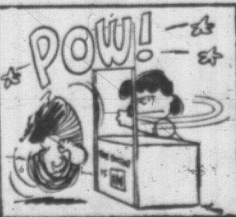

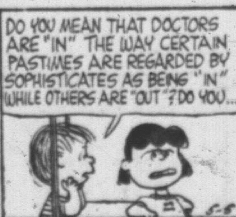

The festival will start at 1:30 p.m. on the Tsartlip Indian reserve, just outside of Brentwood. Members of bands from all parts of Vancouver Island, the B.C. mainland and Washington State will be present.

MAJOR EVENT

There will be a total of 132 trained paddlers taking part in war canoe races, the regatta's major event.

The festival will open with a parade of paddlers, followed by an ancient Indian dance and song, welcoming the various members of bands to the reserve.

Throughout the day salmon barbecued in open pits, as well as clam chowder, will be available to guests.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Pleasantly Surprise Mum With Rainbow-Hued Sugar

By PENNY SAVER

Here's an idea for children-looking for gifts for a practical-minded Mum! Get her some sugar to serve with a fragrant cup of tea or coffee when guests come calling. Sugar I've seen today will add a party air to any coffee-break or tea hour get-together because it comes in the colors of the rainbow. It comes from England and sells at 48 cents for a one-pound box.

An unusual and tasty gift would be a jar of plum butter imported from Germany. It has a delicious flavor and sells at 54 cents for a 12-ounce jar.

For grand family roast you can't do better than buy sirloin tip that's on "special" this weekend. It's a real buy at 98 cents a pound. If you're planning a very special meal, for hubby or for friends, beef-tenderloin has been marked down to $1.95.

With arrival of London "cabbie" Bert Burns in Victoria this week, it's natural that I should begin to think of meals that have a real-English flavor!

One of these is steak and kidney pudding—"stike and kidney pud" to those from Bert's home town! If you've never tasted this dish, I'd suggest you try a pudding prepared from an old English recipe by a store I was in this week. Puddings come in the bowl they're cooked in and sell at 80 cents. They're complete with savory gravy and suet pastry. There's a deposit of 35 cents on the bowl—redeemed when bowl is returned—and one of these makes a good meal for two persons.

If you would like to know where Penny shopped today give her a ring at EV 2-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

What's This? Drain the Glands to Lose Weight?

Q "I have medium bones and am 5 feet tall and weigh 120 pounds. The trouble is it shows! I am a teen-ager. I have tried dieting and exercise and have not lost any weight. I read some place that a person can have her glands drained and lose excess weight. Please tell me how this works and how much it would cost."

Lowman

A. Now I have heard everything! Usually when folks think up ways to lose weight it is a pleasanter and easier way; something like standing up for 15 minutes after each meal. Draining the glands sounds pretty gruesome. I imagine you got this impression because you read somewhere that a glandular deficiency may play a part in overweight. This is true in a very small percentage of cases.

You did not tell me your age. If you are 15, you should weigh about 105 pounds. If you are 13 you should weigh about 95 pounds. My guess is that you have not counted your calories carefully. If you have cut down some and have not lost, see your doctor and ask him about it.

Q "I am 5 feet 4 1/2 inches tall and weigh 115 pounds. I eat and eat but never gain an ounce. I would not care except that I have no hips. When I wear slacks the back part just hangs. How can I develop a pair of hips?"

A. If you gained weight, of course your hips would become larger just like the rest of you. However, the hips probably would remain out of proportion to the rest of you. You can enlarge the hips by developing the hip muscles. Try this exercise regularly. It is also a good abdominal exercise. Stand tall. Place one hand on the wall for support. Bend the knee up in front of you, close to your abdomen.

Kick back, straightening the leg, toe off the floor. Again bend the knee up in front of you and continue. After a while do the same thing with the other leg.

Q "I have never seen an article about how a woman can flatten her stomach after having a baby. Is this possible?"

A. Yes. The abdominal muscles become stretched during pregnancy and exercise can help snap them back into shape. Lax muscles are the reason for the protruding abdomen.

Of course, if you gained weight yourself during those nine months, you will have to diet also. Usually, exercise is allowed about six months after the arrival of the baby. However, individual cases differ and you should ask your doctor this.

DEAR ABBY

All Tied Up!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been married less than a year to a man who, I think, is a mental case. I never loved him, but he wouldn't leave me alone. He threatened to take his life if I didn't marry him. Besides, I was a divorcee with three teen-aged children, and this man could give us a home and security. (He has a lot of money.) He is 58 and I am 33.

Well, he couldn't get along with my children and he got very tight with his money. We fought all the time, and he would yell and storm and break up the furniture. He took rat poison last week—but not enough. The doctor tells me he needs mental treatment. Can I put him away in an institution? If I can prove he wasn't all there when he married me, can I get an annulment? Where will this leave me financially?

NEEDS TO KNOW
DEAR NEEDS: His doctor can tell you whether your husband should be institutionalized. And a lawyer can tell you if you are entitled to an annulment, and also where "this leaves you, financially."

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that mothers are stricter with daughters, but will let their sons do anything they want? That is the situation in our family and I have talked to my friends and they say the same thing.

DEAR VIRGINIA: Don't complain, dear. It all averages out. The fathers are stricter with the boys.

DEAR ABBY: I have a buddy who is running around on his wife. They have seven kids and she is just about the sweetest girl I know. I can't bear to see her treated like this. She is only 25, and as pretty as a picture.

She's been giving him a family at the rate of one a year, so she isn't able to go dancing every night. But he goes.

I would give my right arm for a girl like her, but she wouldn't look at another man. I am sure she knows he chases because sometimes he comes home with lipstick all over him. And sometimes he doesn't come home at all. How can I help her?

A BUDDY'S BUDDY
DEAR BUDDY: You can help her by helping your buddy to straighten up.

Fast-moving show included beach wear, town and country dresses, "after five" gowns and many travelling outfits. Later were mainly in soft materials that "packed small" and required little or no ironing. Fashions shown morning and evening were by The T. Eaton Company.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

TORONTO, May 4th—How's your "bargain balance"? When you see that "certain something" going at a sacrifice price you will be ready to put down the necessary cash to make it your own? You will if you have a special "Sale Account" at the BANK OF MONTREAL. If you haven't already opened such an account—be sure to do so without delay. Even small deposits made regularly have a way of adding up fast to a substantial "bargain balance". So see your neighbourhood branch of the B.O.M. soon... a growing "Sale Account" is the only way I know to be sure of turning waiting into getting next time you meet a real bargain face to face.

AS A GRAND AND GLORIOUS finale to a good dinner, I recommend this party-like dessert—Creamy Coffee-custard Pudding, made with NESTLE'S PURE THICK CREAM. That's the rich, dairy cream that stays fresh indefinitely, right on your kitchen shelf. Creamy Coffee-custard Pudding:

Measure 1 1/4 cups cold milk into a bowl; stir in 1 (6-ounce) can Nestle's Pure Thick Cream. Sprinkle with 1 (approx. 4-ounce) package buttered instant pudding mix and 2/3 teaspoon Nescafe. Using a hand rotary beater, beat until pudding is smooth and blended—about 1 minute. Turn into dessert glasses. Chill. If desired, top with lightly-sweetened Nestle's Pure Thick Cream. Yield: 4 servings.

DAY IN, DAY OUT—every day of the month—you can count on FRESH Cream Deodorant—the deodorant designed to please you! Just right for us women—because it's both gentle and completely effective. Gentle because there's no harsh irritant to normal skin. Effective because it's a long-lasting antiperspirant. Yes, I know Fresh will protect me, hour after busy hour... when it's Fresh Roll-On in the exclusive upside-down bottle, Fresh Stick or Fresh Cream. Use Fresh every day—I know you'll love the feeling of confidence it gives you! You can count on Fresh!

TRULY, YOU CAN REDUCE on three good meals a day! Do it with the NARAN PLAN—no starvation diet, but one that helps keep you feeling and looking better than ever before. The NARAN PLAN features a daily, Sunday to Saturday, diet that's safe, sensible, and gets you into the kind of eating habits that will help keep you slender. Eat less salt, fatty and starchy foods and take Naran Concentrate to help avoid the irregularity which frequently accompanies a change in diet. Yes, if you wish to reduce easily and sensibly, ask for the NARAN PLAN at your favorite drugstore.

IF YOU'RE "SPRING-CLEANING" YOUR BUDGET... here's one best way to begin: Instead of using the costly spread on your table, serve BLUE BONNET MARGARINE. You'll love its fresh, sunny-sweet flavour and, because Blue Bonnet is an all-vegetable margarine, you can be sure it's nutritious. You'll want to keep it always on hand, not only to use as a spread, but for light, light pastries—tender cakes—and as an ideal vegetable topping. Do try nutritious Blue Bonnet—it makes just about everything taste better!

Premier Likes Shirley's Career

The acting career of Saskatchewan Premier Douglas is gaining power over in London, England. "Variety" the show business weekly publication reports that Shirley Douglas has a role in a movie that's almost certain to stir up a lot of controversy when it gets into general release. It's the film version of the already controversial novel "Lolita."

Variety speculates that Douglas may have to sneak into adjoining Manitoba to catch his daughter's new film. It says that Douglas, an ordained Baptist minister, thinks it will probably be banned in Saskatchewan.

Shirley Douglas has been over in England working in the theatre for nearly a decade. She went overseas while still in her teens after winning the best actress award in a production of "Tomorrow the World" in a regional drama festival in Regina. In that play she had the role of a 12-year-old girl, although she was then about to graduate from high school.

The blonde, blue-eyed daughter of the Saskatchewan premier was praised at that time for giving the only sustained, completely audible performance in the whole festival in the opinion of the festival's adjudicator, Pierre LeFevre of London.

Actually, Shirley began acting at the age of five in a school play — "The Princess and the Fairies." Later she attended the School of Fine Arts at Banff in the Rockies, where she learned ballet and studied acting.

Shirley decided to study for the theatre in London for two reasons. She says the first was "because I wanted to be here." The second: "Because I was advised that schools in the States offered less."

She enrolled at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London, the alma mater of such acting greats as Laurence Olivier and Charles Laughton.

During the years since she arrived in London, Shirley has kept herself busy studying, appearing in the theatre and films, and performing with the BBC.

In "Lolita" she joins a distinguished cast which includes James Mason, Shelley Winters and Peter Sellers.

POLAR ICE PROJECT NEW TIMES FEATURE

Polar Continental Shelf Project. That's its name. Its field headquarters is a wind-lashed camp 850 miles from the North Pole. And hardly anyone unconnected with the project has the vaguest idea of what it's all about. Canadians should. For the Polar Continental Shelf is the largest, the most comprehensive — and one of the toughest — jobs of Arctic exploration ever undertaken by a single nation.

Did you know that study of the polar ice may be the key to long-range weather forecasting for the Canadian prairies?

Can you imagine working on the open ice in 25-below weather, with the wind gusting to 30 or 40 miles an hour? Can you envision "farming" metals on the floor of the Arctic Ocean?

Can you picture a "garden" on the ice showing the way to longer shipping seasons Outside?

Winnipeg newspaper man Erik Watt flew 2,100 miles north of Winnipeg to Isachsen, on Elles Ringnes Island, to attempt to learn what the Polar Shelf Project was doing, how it was doing the job and what it hoped to accomplish now and in the future.

In a series of articles starting Saturday in The Times, he tells what he found... and why the least-known polar project ever launched has a vital role to play in the future of our nation.

HAMILTON ANSWERS ARGUE

China Committed On Wheat Deal

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton said today the Communist Chinese government has committed itself under the new 2½-year agreement to buy the same quantities of grain as Canada has committed itself to sell.

He made the statement to a press conference in replying to charges by CCF Leader Argue in the Commons Thursday that there was a firm contract for only 28,000,000 of the 186,000,000 bushels of wheat involved and, beyond that, China had made no commitment.

"Everyone assumes that if you make an agreement to provide there is an agreement to purchase, and there is," Mr. Hamilton told reporters.

He said Mr. Argue had referred to the announcement Tuesday which said the initial contract under the agreement had been signed, and that each future agreement would be negotiated as to price and quantity.

CANADA'S IDEA
"It was at Canada's insistence that there be no firm price for the term of the agreement," Mr. Hamilton said.

This had been done because of the experience with the 1946 wheat agreement with Britain, under which Canada's selling price was set for four years. Mr. Hamilton added: "This put western farmers in a strait-jacket so that when world prices went up it is estimated

FISHERIES DEPARTMENT APPROVES SEWER PLANS

NORTH COWICHAN — Two sewer schemes to be voted on by ratepayers Saturday have the approval of the Fisheries Department, Reeve Donald Morton said at a meeting of North Cowichan municipal council Thursday.

They are the $127,000, Mary Street-Sherman Road system which will discharge into Holmes Creek, and the $131,000 Alexander subdivision system which will flow into Somenos Creek.

Treatment plants will be installed in both, he said. In regard to complaints that fish life would be damaged by effluent during periods of low water, Reeve Morton said the systems will be an improvement over the present situation in which raw sewage is discharged into the streams from septic tanks.

Scenic Tour 'Packages' Summer Plan

NANAIMO (CP) — Recreation and Conservation Minister Westwood has urged Vancouver Island municipalities to arrange "package" scenic tours as an attraction to summer tourists.

He told the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities scenic trips established by members on a co-operative basis could turn the island into a tourist Mecca.

Vancouver Island will receive $10,000 in matching grants to be made by the provincial government for regional tourist promotion.

ISLAND DIGEST

FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1961

$3,600,000

Cost Estimate For Hospital

DUNCAN—Total cost of the proposed hospital to serve the Cowichan district will be $3,655,586, it was announced here by C. A. Green, King's Daughters' Hospital board chairman, and K. F. Noton, administrator.

Federal and provincial governments will pay 56 per cent of the total, or $2,061,623. Balance of $1,593,963 will come from North Cowichan municipality, excluding Chemainus, city of Duncan, Laker Cowichan Hospital Improvement District, and Koksilah Valley Hospital Improvement District.

Tourist Promotion Approved

NANAIMO — Delegates to the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities here Wednesday agreed to raise $13,000 a year for a tourist advertising pool.

Island municipal councils are expected to ratify the decision so that the pool will qualify for about $10,000 more in a grant from the provincial government.

The civic share of the pool will be raised by the municipalities on a per capita basis.

Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau will administer the fund, with AVIM executive members appointed to the bureau's directorate to give up-Island communities a voice in the promotion campaign.

Some delegates appeared cautious about joining the venture but Mayor Percy Scourah assured them that "Victoria is not going to hog the thing."

"We must act as a unit to promote the tourist business," North Cowichan voted against the scheme but Reeve Donald Morton later said the municipality would pay its $716 share once it was established.

Victoria's share in the pool will be $5,000, Seanch $4,088, Esquimalt $1,017, Duncan $309, Port Alberni $929, and lesser amounts for other municipalities.

Elementary Construction Tripled

There has been a threefold increase in elementary school construction because of the Chant Report, an education department spokesman said Thursday.

He said 32 elementary projects have been started so far this year, against a total of 36 for the whole of 1960. The trend indicates that this year's total will be 100 he said.

The Chant Report's recommendation that Grade VII be shifted from junior high to elementary schools was adopted by the provincial government at the last session of the legislature.

This is the reason for the boost in elementary construction, to handle increased enrollments.

Value of school construction contracts already awarded totals $4,500,000, and the overall program is expected to reach a record level.

NO SEIZURE OF B.C. LAND SAYS FULTON

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming denied in the Commons today that the federal government has any intention of amending the British North America Act to expropriate British Columbia land needed for development of the Columbia River power project.

"If anyone said that, he does not know what he is talking about," Mr. Fleming said.

He was replying to H. W. Herridge (CCF — Kootenay West) who said it had been suggested by the Liberal party leader in British Columbia, Ray Perrault.

Three Groups Get Grants From Koerner

Three Victoria organizations have been awarded grants totalling $2,000 to aid them in their work by the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation, it was learned today.

Victoria Symphony received $1,000 to bring young guest artists to play with the symphony, and to add to its music library.

Victoria College was awarded $500 to help develop appreciation of the fine arts among students of the college.

ART GALLERY
The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria received $300 for the purchase of books.

The Victoria organizations were among a total of 47 groups throughout the province which were awarded $64,150 in grants from the million-dollar foundation set up in 1956 by Dr. Koerner and the late Mrs. Koerner.

Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie of UBC said in announcing the awards that additional grants will be made in the fall. The Koerner Foundation was established to aid projects in cultural and creative arts, higher education, health and welfare, and medical research.

Job Service Extends Hours For Employers

The National Employment Office advise that effective immediately they will accept orders from employers from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday. Formerly this service was from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Officials feel the extended service will be of benefit to contractors, who find it difficult to telephone for additional men during working hours on job sites. This also applies to householders and others who may find the service advantageous when seeking casual day workers.

Officials of the NES said employers can take advantage of this service by telephoning EV 5-6711. Placement officers will be on hand to handle all orders.

FIRST U.S. SPACEMAN FROM 115 MILES UP;

'WHAT A BEAUTIFUL VIEW'

The spaceman and his vehicle, 'Freedom 7,' at launching pad.

DOCTORS' REPORT

'Physically Fit
... Fine Spirits'

ABOARD USS LAKE CHAMPLAIN (AP) — Astronaut Alan B. Shepard was reported in "excellent physical condition" and in "fine spirits" less than an hour after he returned to earth from his space flight.

The report was made by doctors who examined him on this ship.

Army Capt. Jerry Strong, one of the doctors, reported: "There is nothing we can determine that is in any way abnormal after the flight."

Shepard looked in great shape as he came aboard after his ride into the unknown.

He shook hands with doctors and hundreds of sailors cheered.

Then he walked toward the admiral's quarters to get a physical examination and to tell the story of his flight. Only the doctors were permitted to speak to the astronaut.

FORGOT HELMET

Shepard stepped out of the helicopter at about 11:01 a.m., went briefly to the capsule and picked up his space helmet which he had left behind.

He said "thank you" to Lieut. George Cox, the co-pilot, who also snagged the space chimp, Ham, from the ocean.

It was a real spit and polish welcome usually reserved for high brass admirals.

Seamen shouted and whooped when they first saw the orange parachute appear northeast of the carrier.

He will be flown to Washington, probably Sunday or Monday, for a hero's welcome at the White House from President Kennedy.

He will remain in Washington about 36 hours and then will return to Cape Canaveral for further tests.

Congo Ferry Closed

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — The central Congolese government today closed the river ferry between here and Brazzaville in protest against the appeal by President Fulbert Youlou of the neighboring Congo Republic for the release of President Moise Tshombe of Katanga.

'Just About Perfect'
—Astronaut to JFK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Astronaut Alan B. Shepard personally reported to President Kennedy by radio telephone today that "everything worked just about perfectly" on his flight into space.

"It was a very rewarding experience for me and the people who made it possible," Shepard told the president.

Kennedy spoke from his White House office to Shepard in the admiral's quarters aboard the navy aircraft carrier Lake Champlain.

The conversation came shortly after Shepard was plucked out of the Atlantic and flown aboard the Champlain by helicopter.

Here is the text of their conversation:

Kennedy — Hello Commander. Shepard — Yes sir.

Kennedy — I want to congratulate you very much.

Shepard — Thank you very much, Mr. President.

Kennedy — We watched you on TV, of course, and we are awfully pleased and proud of what you did.

Shepard — Well, thank you, sir. As you know by now everything worked just about perfectly and it was a very rewarding experience for me and the people who made it possible.

Kennedy — We are looking forward to seeing you up here, Commander.

Shepard — Thank you very much, sir. I am looking forward to it, I assure you.

Kennedy — The members of the National Security Council are meeting on another matter this morning and they all want me to give you their congratulations.

Shepard — Thank you very much, sir, and I'm looking forward to meeting you in the near future.

Kennedy — Thank you, Commander and good luck.

The White House announced that Shepard probably will be brought here Monday to confer with Kennedy and to receive his congratulations in person.

There was a move afoot in Congress to award Shepard the Medal of Honor—the nation's most coveted decoration. In a statement issued immediately after the flight, Kennedy said all Americans rejoice in the mission carried out by the heroic astronaut.

'Two Years Behind Us'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Noted Soviet ballistics expert Georgi Pokrovsky said today the United States man-in-space program still lags behind the Soviet Union by roughly two years.

"Today's flight is in some measure like those of June, 1959, in the Soviet Union when we launched and recovered animals from rockets. The result and the scientific interest is about the same," he said.

"Today's experience certainly augments the possibility of the Americans launching of a man around the earth," he added.

Peace Parley Opens in Laos

BAN HIN HEUP, Laos (UPI) — Representatives of the pro-Western royal government of Laos and the Communist-backed Pathet Lao rebels met on a dusty road near here today to begin peace talks.

A six-member government team headed by army inspector General Sing Battanamatay flew in from Vientiane aboard an American-piloted helicopter.

Premier Prince Boun Oum sent them to meet with representative Souvanna Phouma and the Communist Pathet Lao rebels.

Already on the scene making preliminary preparations was Col. Siho Lamphouthakoul, director of national co-ordination. He was smiling and pleased at the results of his preliminary contacts with the rebels but not overly optimistic at what would come out of the conference.

Up to today, all exchanges between the rebels and the government, representatives had been by messenger between the lines.

Well, th' two sides in Laos hev met. But I doubt if th' acquaintanceship will ripen into somethin' more than targets.

An astronaut likes t' be way out—but not in his calculations.

Whoever wrecked th' high school has proved somethin'—but you'd think he'd rather not hev let it be known.

Astronaut Controls
Own Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—America's first astronaut leaped 115 miles into space today aboard a spacecraft named "Freedom 7" and won for America and mankind a historic breakthrough: the first flight in space controlled by the pilot himself.

The astronaut, 37-year-old Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., was plucked from the sea 21 minutes later and 302 miles down the Atlantic missile range. He was not only alive but in all respects "okay" and thousands were witnesses to the fact of his feat.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) happily announced: "The space flight is a success."

President Kennedy personally congratulated Shepard by radio telephone shortly after successful completion of the flight.

The chief executive promised to share with the world the scientific material obtained during the flight, which he called a "historic milestone" in America's space effort.

As Shepard sailed high over the Atlantic and surveyed the U.S. coastline as far north as Cape Hatteras, N.C., he radioed back from the capsule:

"What a beautiful view!"

Another spaceman, Russia's Yuri Gagarin, had gone higher and farther and faster. But Alan Shepard was the first man in history to exercise control over the motions of a craft he was riding in space.

Said NASA while the 37-year-old navy commander was still in space: "He is working as a test pilot."

Shepard and Freedom 7

'Man, What
A Ride'

ABOARD USS LAKE CHAMPLAIN (UPI) — Astronaut Alan B. Shepard's first words when he climbed into the recovery helicopter after landing at sea today: "Man, what a ride!"

He grinned happily as he said it, reported Lt. George Cox, Eustis, Fla. Cox was co-pilot of the helicopter.

He had been sealed into the cabin at 7:07 a.m. EDT. He lay there three hours and 27 minutes before the tension-breaking announcement, "Liftoff," came from the Mercury control centre.

But once started, the flight went perfectly. Second by second NASA reported what was going on aboard the Freedom 7. Almost before those waiting on the cape could catch their breath after watching the Redstone's beautiful flight until it was out of sight, the word came at 10:58 a.m. EDT that a helicopter had plucked Shepard out of the capsule and was bearing him and his space coach to the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain.

Then came the word that Shepard was on the deck "under his own power and doing very well."

Yuri Gagarin, on April 12, flew around the world in a five-ton spacecraft which was operated entirely by automatic or ground controls.

Shepard during much of his ride put the capsule through various manoeuvres.

He changed the way it pointed in space.

He controlled its pitch, roll, and yaw.

He reported what was happening to him when gravity forces multiplied his weight some six times during powered flight and 11 times when he came back down through the atmosphere.

But throughout the physical stresses and the mental strain of watching or operating more than 100 instruments, Shepard reported back constantly by voice radio that "everything was 'okay.'"

After extending a periscope he reported exultantly: "What a beautiful view."

Returned to Ship to Get Helmet

From 115 miles up, he could scan the azure Atlantic and Caribbean with their green islands, and the southern coast of the United States as far as Cape Hatteras, N.C.

And when he returned home to earth again, aboard the carrier Lake Champlain, he jauntily re-entered spaceship "Freedom 7" to retrieve the pressure helmet he had doffed during the helicopter recovery.

Electronic sensors fixed to Shepard's skin kept medical monitors in the ground control centre here constantly informed about his breathing, heartbeat, and temperature. Their one-word report of his condition: "Excellent."

Three hundred seconds after liftoff he reported the flight was going "very smooth."

Seven minutes after launch

he had put the cabin into position to re-enter the atmosphere. He said it went "okay."

Twelve minutes and 30 seconds after the launch the capsule's parachute had opened and it was coming down.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced at 11:10 a.m. EDT:

"A project Mercury spacecraft carrying astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., on the nation's first manned space flight landed in the Atlantic Ocean about 302 statute miles from here at 9:49 a.m. EST."

The craft reached an altitude of 118,000 feet.

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russians got their first word of America's successful manned space flight today in a normal Moscow radio news program.

There were no special bulletins.

Speaking in a normal tone of voice and without comment, the announcer said the United States had launched a man in a rocket "sent vertically up to 115 miles."

The announcer did not use the words "space" or "cosmos." He said the man-carrying rocket was launched "along an orbital ballistic trajectory" and the man had been picked up from the ocean "feeling fine."

Ottawa Orders Assent
For Controversial Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal cabinet has ordered royal assent to be given to the Saskatchewan legislation bill on which assent was reserved April 8 by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Bastedo, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today.

He told the Commons that Mr. Bastedo had reserved assent on the bill without instructions from or consultation with Ottawa, and that the cabinet is considering a formal instruction to all lieutenant-governors to avoid such action.

The bill involved called for a renegotiation of mineral contracts in Saskatchewan. Mr. Bastedo reserved assent "for the significance of the pleasure of the governor-general."

Mr. Diefenbaker said a federal order-in-council has been passed under which the governor-general, on advice of the cabinet, has declared assent.

The prime minister said Mr. Bastedo, in his reasons for reservation attached to the bill sent to Ottawa, cited his opinion that the bill was ultra vires of the provincial legislature and "not in the national interest."

Justice Minister Fulton has expressed his opinion that the legislation is within the Saskatchewan legislature's competence, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Fourth Chance Saturday for Saanich School Bylaw

Ratepayers in the rural areas of Saanich Peninsula will vote Saturday on a new $675,000 school building bylaw.

The vote will bring to an end three months of extensive campaigning by proponents of and opponents of the school building program—a program which has been defeated at the polls three times in the past two years.

Polls will be opened from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Polling booths will be located in all schools (except Mount Newton High School) in School District 63 which takes in the rural area of Saanich, Central Saanich, Sidney and unorganized territory.

Returning officer is Gordon Hayward, Saanich municipal clerk.

The proposed construction program is to overcome overcrowding in rural schools.

At present about 600 students are on the shift system and many are housed in sub-standard classrooms. Defeat of the bylaw will mean increasing the shift system in both junior high and elementary schools, officials say.

Biggest item on the program is the proposed new high school at Wesley Road, Cordova Bay, planned at a cost of $340,000.

While all property owners agree there is an urgent need for schools, the new high school has been the controversial factor in the program. It has split voters for and against the bylaw.

The controversy has centered around whether the high school should be equipped with a gymnasium and facilities for home economics and industrial arts.

A section of the school district favors these facilities while a second faction is strongly opposed to them.

The bylaw also calls for the provision of additional rooms to many of the district's elementary schools. Cost to taxpayers is estimated to be less than a million dollars of taxable assessment.

The provincial government will pay about 75 per cent of the cost, leaving the school district to raise about $175,000.

Under the bylaw, Brentwood school will be enlarged at a cost of $25,000, while Beaver Lake will get two additional classrooms, together with extensions to the present building to provide janitor storage and book storage area. The cost will be $30,000.

Other additions are planned (with additional space or renovated) as follows:

Cordova Bay, a three-classroom addition to cost about $42,000; Keating, a new classroom, $15,000; McTavish Road, a new classroom, $14,000; North Saanich, a classroom, $17,000; Royal Oak, two counselling rooms, textbook storage rooms and additional washroom facilities.

Schools at Deep Cove, Mount Newton, Prospect Lake, Saanichton, Sansbury and Sidney will also be provided either

New heating systems will also be installed in some schools where wood and coal are still in use, thus eliminating the need for additional janitorial help.

In addition to the construction costs, the bylaw provides for the furnishing and equipping of the buildings to minimum standards established by the provincial government.

Many of the schools are not furnished to standards set by law.

MONTE ROBERTS

When the sirens sounded this morning, I, for one, wasn't worried. I knew it couldn't be an invasion. Who would want to invade a place with weather like this in May?

I understood there were some people who looked with disfavor on Operation Tocsin.

Times staffer Tony Dickason, who, in the line of duty has made a close study of civil defence, says these people are simply anti-tocsin.

(That's a joke, son, and har-de-har har.)

And then there was Old Vic's Uncle Zeke's cousin Elmer. When the sirens wailed, he took two aspirins and a quart of scotch, and was thus prepared for any eventuality.

But it was obvious to all observers that those best prepared for the exercise were the B.C. Electric workmen. They go underground at 8 a.m. every day.

Did you notice the strange silence in the vicinity of the Legislative Buildings when the sirens stopped?

What a whale of a difference the absence of the cabinet can make.

There is also Old Vic's Uncle Zeke's other cousin, Elmer, Jr.

Elmer, Jr., refuses to worry about fall out.

Says he fell out with his wife 40 years ago and has lived happily ever after.

There is one pretty young thing who is doing her best to go along with today's exercise.

She says she is no longer going to kick over-ardent swains in the shin with her needle-pointed shoes.

Just going to slap them, she says.

A much more civil defence, in her opinion.

However, we really shouldn't poke fun at today's Operation Tocsin, which, after all, was only an exercise on paper.

I hope there's lots of paper left when the real thing comes along.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The younger section of the Junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey Restaurant parking lot for a field trip to Mount Douglas Park.

The warning followed up overnight theft of a cheque-writing machine and a number of cheques from Island Farms Dairy, 2220 Blanshard.

About 40 persons interested in community planning will see three short films Monday at 12:30 p.m. on urban growth and renewal. The program, arranged by Capital Region Planning Board, will be presented in the National Film Board Auditorium, 816 Government.

City Council Fights On Centennial Plans

Fireworks over handling of next year's centennial celebration broke out in city council today.

Ald. M. H. Mooney launched a single-handed attack against what he claimed were unauthorized actions by the centennial committee.

From the other flank, Ald. Michael Griffin sniped at the tourist industry for taking a back seat in helping pay for the city's 100th birthday party that is expected to produce a tourist bonanza.

Both lost their battles, although several times arguments between Ald. Mooney on one side and Mayor Percy Scurrell and Ald. Edgelow on the other came close to the shouting stage.

Council finally cut a requested $50,000 appropriation for the centennial committee in half on the understanding it would donate more money next year.

Ald. Mooney pointed out the city previously approved $2,000 for hiring a centennial secretary through the city's personnel department.

Instead, he charged, the secretary was hired without advertising of the opening, prior screening by the personnel department or establishment of the wage scale.

Ald. Mooney also charged that an assistant was hired without reference to council or screening by the personnel department and the permanent office was located outside of City Hall.

"We're off on the wrong foot on the whole deal to start with," he said.

Mayor Percy Scurrell angrily retorted that he could not find any fault with the committee's actions and described some of Ald. Mooney's contentions as "ridiculous."

"Do you want results or do you want to go by the book," the mayor demanded. "I don't know what all this row is about."

The mayor admitted the opening was not advertised, because "we were looking for a special man for a special job."

Ald. Edgelow, chairman of centennial committee, also retorted he did "not know what all this fuss is about. The personnel officer told me he was satisfied."

He said an outside office was obtained because there was no room for the secretary in City Hall. The secretary's assistant now has an application form on file at the personnel department.

"People criticized us for not getting this thing going fast enough so we're trying to push ahead," Ald. Edgelow said.

Council rejected Ald. Mooney's motion requiring specific council approval before the committee can spend any more of its appropriation this year.

Also rejected was a motion by Ald. Griffin requiring the committee to obtain matching donations from businessmen before it could spend any of the city's money.

BALLET ENTHUSIAST HURTS BACK

Her mother said the girl had just returned from seeing the "Royal Ballet" film starring prima ballerina Margot Fonteyn at a local theatre.

Paper 'Bombing' Wipes Out City

But Government Survives Up-Island

By Staff Reporters

At 8 a.m. today civil defence sirens sounded to give warning that an enemy attack by air was likely.

The civil defence organization, receiving this first warning of trouble, started to work on evacuation of this area, and by 10:15 a.m., when sirens wailed that attack was imminent, 49,000 had been sent to safety in their own cars.

The 10:15 warning was a signal to take cover, and evacuation had to stop.

At 10:50 a five-megaton bomb dropped on Brothie Ledge and the blast and resulting 280-foot tidal wave killed or drowned everyone within a five-mile radius of ground zero.

Therefore, those who decided to take a chance and sit out the attack, and who were anywhere within the circle bounded by View Royal, Royal Oak, Glenknap Lake, Mount Douglas and Cadboro Bay, now are dead, dead, dead.

That was the situation posed by Exercise Tocsin 1961, a nationwide civil defence drill in which practically every city, town and hamlet in the country took part, and which was formally opened by Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

It was assumed that within 18 minutes of the first alert a missile-born bomb dropped at Cold Lake, Alta. Within minutes other were dropping all over the North American continent.

The bomb which obliterated Victoria was dropped by one of a fleet of manned bombers which proceeded south along the Pacific coast.

GOVERNMENT FLEES

As far as Victoria was concerned, its chief problem was in establishing the seat of government at emergency headquarters in Nanaimo. Officials began leaving with the sound of the first siren at 8 a.m., and eventually more than 200 federal, provincial and army officials were at work in the drill hall at Nanaimo Army Camp.

The drill hall setup was an exact replica of the plan to be followed after construction of an actual steel and concrete bunker at Camp Nanaimo.

Heading the federal party was Justice Minister David Fulton, regional provincial-federal liaison commander, who said he was "sorry" that Premier Bennett was not on-hand. The premier was reported on holiday in the interior.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, one of eight cabinet ministers on hand, said at press time the exercise had gone well. The public had responded well by not becoming alarmed at the siren warnings.

Deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace said at least 50 of the officials at the temporary seat of government were from Victoria.

"Political leaders are not running for cover at a time like this, but are ensuring continuity of government," he said. No families of politicians would be evacuated to this area, he said.

C. R. Boehm, provincial civil defence controller, said the six main branches of control were manpower, transport, communications, army, information, and miscellaneous services.

SOLDIERS TO SOOKE

Although this actually was a "paper" exercise, with no civilians involved, the moving of 2,500 soldiers from Work Point to Sooke at 3 a.m. was very real.

The troops were roused without warning, and taken to a staging area, then returned to their barracks.

Commodore Val Godfrey, Greater Victoria civil defence controller, shouldered the responsibility of taking care of this area's services.

With the sounding of the alert at 8 a.m., he started gathering his staff, and sent them to a bunker on Keating Cross Road.

Evacuation was the first job undertaken, then after the assumed blast, mop-up began.

Heading the army's 25 Militia Group was Col. L. W. Johnson, and observing were Mayor Percy Scurrell and Reeves E. C. Wurtele, Esquimalt; George Chatterton, Saanich; Gordon Lee, Central Saanich, and George Murdoch, Oak Bay.

On a national scale, the exercise was considered so important that Prime Minister Diefenbaker's address summarily "cut in" on running radio reports of the American space shot.

VITALLY IMPORTANT

Mr. Diefenbaker told Canadians from coast-to-coast the "Exercise Tocsin," for which cabinet members and key government officials moved to Camp Petawawa from Ottawa, was vitally important — although the government did not accept "the inevitability of war."

"Rather," he said, "it is a recognition of the facts and realities that cause us to make preparations to the end that we shall be ready in the event that war comes."

BUNKER PLAN ANNOUNCED

A permanent steel and concrete bunker to house government headquarters in case of disaster will be built at Camp Nanaimo, Brig. J. W. Bishop, B.C. army area commander, announced today in Nanaimo during Exercise Tocsin.

SHOWN FLEEING "nuclear attack" on their Victoria offices shortly after 8 this morning is this trio of government officials hoping to find sanctuary in Nanaimo. $3,000 Damage In School Raid

By MICHAEL ROSE

City police and juvenile model aircraft built by students. authorities are still seeking young vandals who broke into Victoria High School early Thursday in a campaign of senseless violence.

The damage was reported to police at 7:45 a.m. Thursday by the morning shift janitor but information was not made public until 9 p.m. the same day.

The veil of silence was explained by school buildings and grounds superintendent W. H. Smith as policy in these cases.

He said school board officials are usually cautious about publicizing methods of entry and types of destruction "because it often starts off a pattern where the things are repeated in one or two more schools."

City police described the outbreak, which destroyed equipment, files and desks, as the worst violence to a school in the city's history.

LIKE VANCOUVER

In a manner reminiscent of Vancouver's wave of school destruction in December of 1959, the vandals smashed at least 28 typewriters, poured acid on desks and chairs, scattered filing cabinets and their contents and slashed couches and chairs.

Mr. Smith said damage would total $2,000 to $3,000 when "all the odds and ends become apparent," but other private estimates ranged even higher including an estimated $2,000 for the typewriters alone.

PAST MIDNIGHT

The raid was believed to have occurred after midnight when the night janitor is said to have gone off shift.

Entry was gained by smashing a ground floor window and the first target was a glass display case in the main hallway containing a number of

ISOLATED CASE

An unsuccessful attempt was made to break into the school safe after the vandals had removed pins from the door hinges to enter the office.

School inspector John Gough described the incident as "apparently an isolated case of sheer vandalism."

"We have had damage done to school buildings in the past, but usually of a minor nature, such as broken windows and the occasional break-in," he said.

BRENTWOOD BAY

War Canoes To Race Sunday

The blue waters of Brentwood Bay Sunday will resound with cries of "salsis" as 12 sleek Indian war canoes compete in a gruelling three-mile race.

Salsis means "switch" and is chanted by the braves as they change paddle.

The race will be part of a colorful water festival sponsored by the Indian Recreation Commission of Saanich.

The festival will start at 1:30 p.m. on the Tsarlip Indian reserve, just outside of Brentwood. Members of bands from all parts of Vancouver Island, the B.C. mainland and Washington State will be present.

MAJOR EVENT

There will be a total of 132 trained paddlers taking part in war canoe races, the regatta's major event.

The festival will open with a parade of paddlers, followed by an ancient Indian dance and song, welcoming the various members of bands to the reserve.

Throughout the day salmon barbecued in open pits, as well as clam chowder, will be available to guests.

IN EXCELLENT SHAPE'Just About Perfect'
—Astronaut to JFK

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard personally reported to President Kennedy by radio telephone today that "everything worked just about perfectly" on his flight into space.

"It was a very rewarding experience for me and the people who made it possible," Shepard told the president.

Kennedy spoke from his White House office to Shepard in the admiral's quarters aboard the navy aircraft carrier Lake Champlain.

The conversation came shortly after Shepard was plucked out of the Atlantic and flown aboard the Champlain by helicopter.

Here is the text of their conversation:

Kennedy—Hello Commander.

Shepard—Yes sir.

Kennedy—I want to congratulate you very much.

Shepard—Thank you very much, Mr. President.

Kennedy—We watched you on TV, of course, and we are awfully pleased and proud of what you did.

Shepard—Well, thank you, sir. As you know by now everything worked just about perfectly and it was a very rewarding experience for me and the people who made it possible.

Kennedy—We are looking forward to seeing you up here, Commander.

Shepard—Thank you very much. I am looking forward to it, I assure you.

Kennedy—The members of the National Security Council are meeting on another matter this morning and they all want me to give you their congratulations.

Shepard—Thank you very much, sir, and I'm looking forward to meeting you in the near future.

Kennedy—Thank you, Commander and good luck.

The White House announced that Shepard probably will be brought here Monday to confer with Kennedy and to receive his congratulations in person.

There was a move afoot in Congress to award Shepard the Medal of Honor—the nation's most coveted decoration.

In a statement issued immediately after the flight, Kennedy said all Americans rejoice in the mission carried out by the heroic astronaut.

RAIN AT LOUISVILLE

'Off' Track Seen
For Derby Run

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—A steady rain drenched Churchill Downs today but failed to dampen the spirits of the men preparing 15 horses for Saturday's 87th running of the $163,000 Kentucky Derby.

The weatherman forecast steady rain throughout today with showers on Saturday, making it highly likely that the first of the triple crown classics will be run on an "off" track.

If the rain continued the running strip could be muddy by post time at 2:30 p.m. PST on Saturday. If the sun gets a chance to shine Saturday, the fast-drying track could be "good" when the three-year-olds prance onto track to the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home."

Mrs. Katherine Price, who owns favored Carry Back, was jubilant as the rain beat a steady tattoo on the roof of the barn housing her horses.

Trainer Chuck Parke, who trains second-choice Crozier for Fred W. Hooper, wasn't turning any handsprings because a front runner can tire more rapidly in the mud. But Crozier has raced well on off footing.

Vance Longden, trainer of the Alberta Ranch's third-choice entry of Four-and-Twenty and Flutterby, exclaimed "excellent" as he watched the rain dance in the puddles outside his barn.

Thus it ran throughout the barns and the 15 horses are expected to start regardless of the track conditions.

BACK FROM SPACE

...Fine Spirits
After Epic Trip

ABOARD USS LAKE CHAMPLAIN (AP)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard was reported in "excellent physical condition" and in "fine spirits" less than an hour after he returned to earth from his space flight.

The report was made by doctors who examined him on this ship.

Army Capt. Jerry Strong, one of the doctors, reported:

"There is nothing we can determine that is in any way abnormal after the flight."

Shepard looked in great shape as he came aboard after his ride into the unknown.

He shook hands with doctors and hundreds of sailors cheered.

Then he walked toward the admiral's quarters to get a physical examination and begin to tell the story of his flight. Only the doctors were permitted to speak to the astronaut.

He will remain in Washington about 36 hours and then will return to Cape Canaveral for further tests.

He picked up his space helmet which he had left behind.

He said "thank you" to Lieut. George Cox, the co-pilot, who also snagged the space-chimp, Ham, from the ocean.

It was a real spit and polish welcome usually reserved for high brass admirals.

Seamen shouted and whooped when they first saw the orange parachute appear northeast of the carrier.

He will be flown to Washington, probably Sunday or Monday, for a hero's welcome at the White House from President Kennedy.

'Man, What
A Ride'

ABOARD USS LAKE CHAMPLAIN (UPI)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard's first words when he climbed into the recovery helicopter after landing at sea today: "Man, what a ride!"

He grinned happily as he said it, reported Lt. George Cox, Eustis, Fla. Cox was co-pilot of the helicopter.

He rose from Launch Pad 5 at 10:34 a.m. EDT (7:34 a.m. Victoria time) on the nose of a 66,000-pound Redstone missile. The launch, postponed since Tuesday, came two hours and 34 minutes after the planned shot time of 8 a.m. EDT.

Seven "holds" (delays), many for weather and one to change an electrical part in the Redstone, had kept the rocket earthbound while Shepard lay strapped to his couch aboard the little Mercury capsule.

Agonizing 3½-Hour Wait in Capsule

He had been sealed into the cabin at 7:07 a.m. EDT. He lay there three hours and 27 minutes before the tension-breaking announcement, "Lift-off," came from the Mercury control centre.

But once started, the flight went perfectly. Second, by second NASA reported what was going on aboard the Freedom 7. Almost before those waiting on the cape could catch their breath after watching the Redstone's beautiful flight until it was out of sight, the word came at 10:58 a.m. EDT that a helicopter had plucked Shepard out of the capsule and was bearing him and his space coach to the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain.

Then came the word that Shepard was on the deck "un-

MOSCOW (UPI)—Russians got their first word of America's successful manned space flight today in a normal Moscow radio news program. There were no special bulletins.

Speaking in a normal tone of voice and without comment, the announcer said the United States had launched a man in a rocket "sent vertically up to 115 miles."

The announcer did not use the words "space" or "cosmos." He said the man-carrying rocket was launched "along an orbital ballistic trajectory" and the man had been picked up from the ocean "feeling fine."

'LET HIM GO OR ABORT THE MISSION'

Eight Seconds to Make Decision

SIX OTHER ASTRONAUTS WERE BUSY

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Roles of the other six astronauts in today's space flight: John Glenn was the backup man for "prime astronaut" Alan Shepard, who rode the spacecraft.

Malcolm Carpenter and Walter Schirra flew F-106 jet chase planes which followed the missile flight.

Leroy Cooper and Donald Slayton worked in the Project Mercury control centre communicator.

Virgil Grissom also was at the control centre, with an earphone he could plug into any channel, to be an adviser at any stage of the countdown.

Mr. Doyle, who lived in the province for 57 years, came here when 16 in 1890.

Within five years he had established branches at Victoria, Seattle and Astoria.

In 1902 with assistance from Emilius Jervis of Toronto he formed the B.C. Packers' Association which operated 40 canneries.

In 1912 he served as vice-president of Northern B.C. Fisheries Limited.

He retired in 1919.

By CHARLES E. TAYLOR

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)

For eight critical seconds in the block-house near Pad No. 5 today Alan Shepard's fate was in the hands and mind of Dr. Kurt Debus.

Debus, a slender, scholarly-looking man, is the propulsion scientist from the Marshall space flight centre, Huntsville, Ala., who was responsible for the Redstone rocket's performance.

His was the final decision whether to let Shepard go into space or to abort the mission rocket. He had to make up his mind in the eight seconds after ignition of the Redstone's alcohol and liquid oxygen fuel before the 33-ton rocket would lift from the pad.

At ignition, Debus was poised over two buttons under a plastic cover. He flipped the cover up, placed his hands close to the buttons and stared intently through a window at the flame spurting from the rocket's exhaust.

From long experience, Debus could tell by studying the color and shape and intensity of the flame whether the burning was going right.

If it were not, one button would "arm" the abort system—a rocket atop a 16-foot tower rising from the mercury capsule. The other would ignite the escape rocket and jerk the capsule and pilot away from the rocket.

der his own power and doing very well."

Shepard during much of his ride put the capsule through various manoeuvres.

He changed the way it pointed in space.

He controlled its pitch, roll, and yaw.

He reported what was happening to him when gravity forces multiplied his weight some six times during powered flight and 11 times when he came back down through the atmosphere.

But throughout the physical stresses and the mental strain of watching or operating more than 100 instruments, Shepard reported back constantly by voice radio that everything was "okay."

After extending a periscope he reported exultantly:

"What a beautiful view." From 115 miles up, he could scan the azure Atlantic and Caribbean with their green islands, and the southern coast of the United States as far as Cape Hatteras, N.C.

And when he returned home to earth again, aboard the carrier Lake Champlain, he jauntily re-entered spaceship Freedom 7 to retrieve the pressure helmet he had doffed during the helicopter recovery.

Electronic sensors fixed to Shepard's skin kept medical monitors in the ground control centre here constantly informed about his breathing, heartbeat, and temperature. Their one-word report of his condition:

"Excellent."

Three hundred seconds after liftoff he reported the flight was going "very smooth."

Seven minutes after launch he had put the cabin into position to re-enter the atmosphere. He said it went "okay."

Twelve minutes and 30 seconds after the launch the capsule's parachute had opened and it was coming down.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced at 11:10 a.m. EDT:

"A project Mercury spacecraft carrying astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., on the nation's first manned space flight landed in the Atlantic Ocean about 302 statute miles from here at 9:49 a.m. EST.

"The craft reached an altitude of about 115 statute miles and a speed of approximately 5,100 miles an hour. The sub-orbital flight of the Mercury-Redstone required 15 minutes. Preliminary data indicates the pilot performed satisfactorily during the flight."

NASA said the flight time, not counting parachute descent, was 15 minutes.

Reports from the Mercury control centre—and from the astronaut—told in tight phrases the story of the epochal flight:

"Ignition."

"Liftoff."

"There it goes."

"Looking good."

"Trajectory okay."

"Pilot in good voice communication."

"Four G's."

"Now out of sight."

"Astronaut okay."

"Taking over manual control of all altitudes . . . control okay."

From Shepard: "What a beautiful view."

"Voice communications still good."

"Retro rocket package jettisoned."

"Astronaut is working like a test pilot, reporting facts and procedures."

"Going into re-entry attitude."

"Parachute out."

Ottawa Gives Assent To Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal cabinet has ordered royal assent to be given to the Saskatchewan legislature bill on which assent was reserved April 8 by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Bastedo, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today.

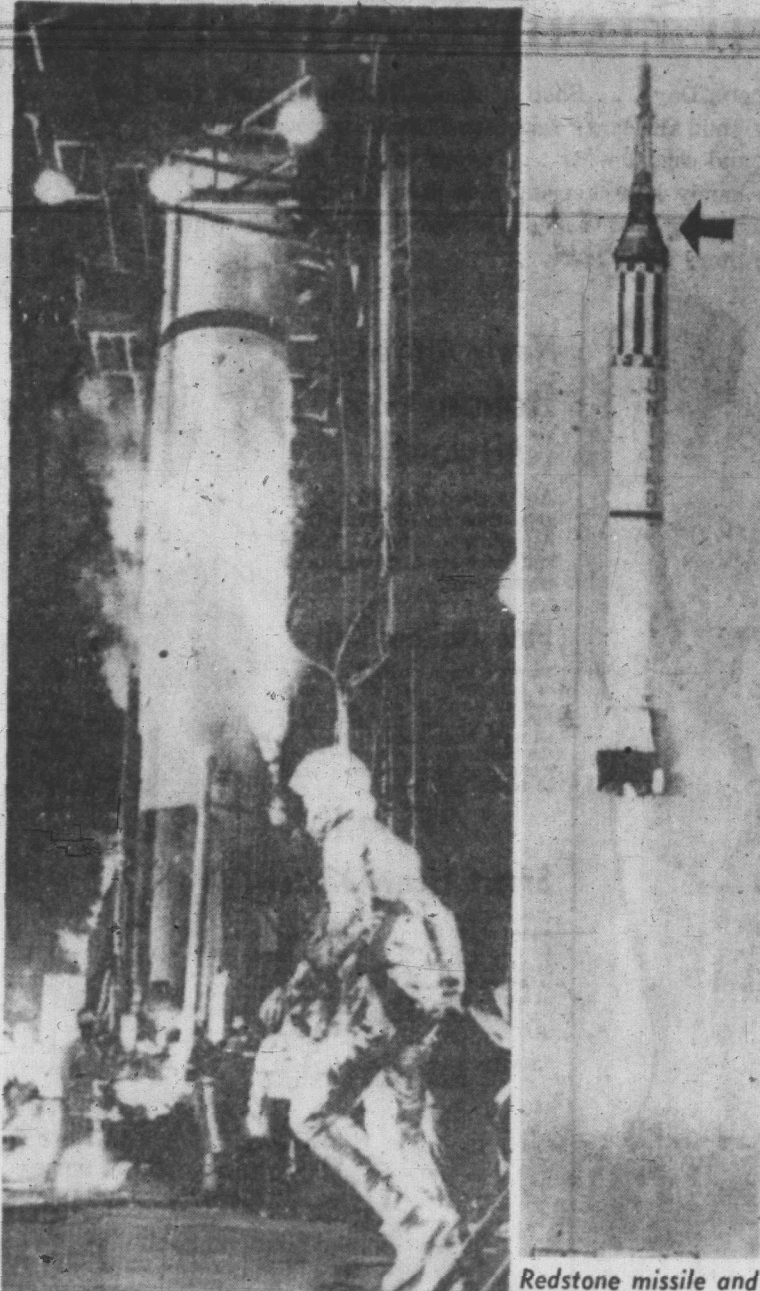

He told the Commons that Mr. Bastedo had reserved assent on the bill without instructions from or consultation with Ottawa, and that the cabinet is considering a formal instruction to all lieutenant-governors to avoid such action.

The bill involved called for a renegotiation of mineral contracts in Saskatchewan. Mr. Bastedo reserved assent "for the signification of the pleasure of the governor-general."

Mr. Diefenbaker said a federal order-in-council has been passed under which the governor-general, on advice of the cabinet, has declared assent.

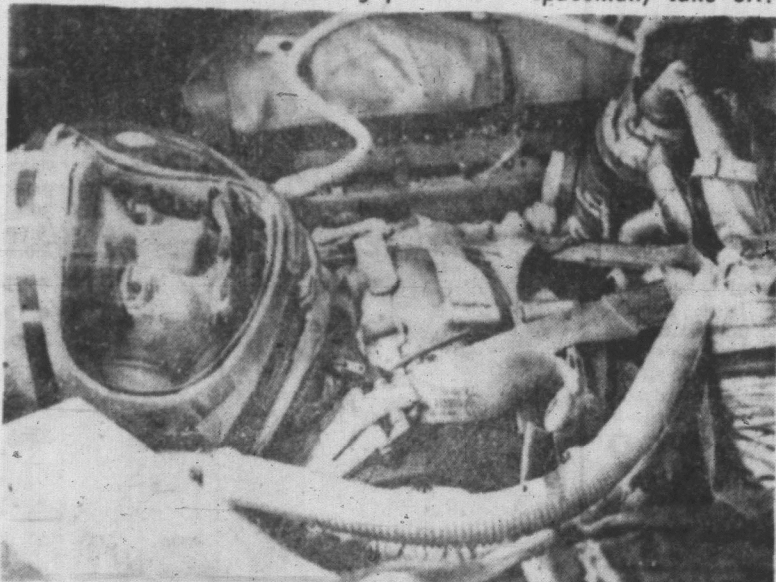

The prime minister said Mr. Bastedo, in his reasons for reservation, attached to the bill sent to Ottawa, cited his opinion that the bill was ultra vires of the provincial legislature and "not in the national interest."

Justice Minister Fulton has expressed his opinion that the legislation is within the Saskatchewan legislature's competence, Mr. Diefenbaker said.
